OUR PARISIAN CORRESPONDENCE.

GARIBALDI IN THE CAPITAL.

Particulars of the Flight of the Ex-King of Naples.

RUPTURE BETWEEN PIEDMONT AND ROME.

Great Military Preparations of Austria.

Entente Cordiale between Austria and Russia.

The Adriatic, whose arrival was announced in yesterday's Times, reached her dock at so late an hour that we were unable to do more than give a brief summary of her news. We furnish this morning some important and highly interesting details.

Garibaldi entered Naples, with his staff alone, at noon on the 8th inst. The joy of the people was intense, and there was no disturbance of any kind. On the evening of the same day the Sardinian flag was flying from all the forts.

It is positively asserted that the Ambassadors of Austria, Russia and Prussia at Naples have received orders to proceed to Gaeta. The French Ambassador is about to return to France, and the British Ambassador will remain at his post.

The Cabinets of Vienna, Munich and Dresden have advised the King of Naples to take refuge in Germany, and not in Spain.

The London Times, in an aricle on Garibaldi's entry into Naples, says:

"We hope he will possess himself of the mixture called the blood of St. Januarius, and cause it to be submitted to a searching chemical analysis, and make the results, whatever they may be, known to the civilized world. It is worthy of the hand which has just emancipated the people from the fetters of temporal oppression to expose one of the grossest and most impudent frauds which even the priesthood of the South of Italy ever practiced on the credulity of a semi-barbarous population."

The entry of Garibaldi into Naples has thrown the Papal Government into a state of consternation.

Sardinian troops are advancing through Tuscany and the Romagna to be in readiness to enter the Papal States. Gen. Lamoricière has concentrated his troops at Spoleto, and has denied the alleged order of the day in which he was said to have directed his soldiers to plunder any town which should rise in insurrection.

The latest news in the Paris papers is that several of the Great Powers have addressed energetic representations to Piedmont with the view of dissuading her from invading the Roman States, and urging that the conduct of the Pontifical Government affords no pretext for a rupture. Nothing is positively known as to the effect which these representations may have had upon the King of Sardinia, but it seems to be certain that none of his regular troops have as yet crossed the frontier.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times denies that the trip of Mr. Edwin James to Southern Italy is in any way connected with a mission from the British Government to Garibaldi.

The following highly important official telegram from St. Petersburg has been published in the Vienna papers:

"The Emperor Alexander and his Government sincerely desire a perfect reconciliation with Austria. The good understanding between Russia and Austria ought never to have been interrupted. The necessary arrangements for a meeting between the two Emperors will be made without delay, and measures will be taken for putting an end to the present state of things, which is no longer tolerable."

We read in Galignani's Messenger:

"The American steamer Adriatic, Capt. Comstock, which lately arrived at Havre, made a remarkably quick passage. She left her dock at Canal-street, New-York, at noon, on Saturday, the 25th of August; passed Cape Race Light on Monday, the 27th, at midnight; reached the Scillies at noon on Monday, the 3d of September, and arrived off the Needles the same evening at midnight, thus making the passage across the Atlantic in nine days twelve hours apparent time, or deducting the difference of time for longitude between New-York and Cowes, in nine days seven hours actual running time. The distance from land to land, or from Cape Race to the Scilly Islands, was accomplished in less than six days eight hours actual running time. The whole distance run to Southampton, as shown by nautical observation, was 3,325 miles, giving an average of 14 miles per hour. This speed has been rarely exceeded by any sea-going steamer."

The London News announces the death of Right Hon. James Wilson. The event is said to have occurred at Calcutta on the 11th of August. The disorder is believed to have been cholera. Mr. Wilson, who was Editor of the London Economist, entered Parliament in 1847, and soon after he was appointed by Lord John Russell to one of the Joint Secretaryships of the Board of Control. In 1852 Mr. Wilson was made one of the Secretaries of the Treasury, a post that he filled until 1858. In 1859 he was appointed Vice-President of the Board of Trade, but was soon afterwards promoted to the post of Finance Minister of the Supreme Council of India—in the discharge of the laborious duties of which he has now sunk into an untimely grave. His death has been a heavy blow to the hopes of reformed administration in India.

PARIS GOSSIP.

The Weather in France—Peculiarities and Caprices of the Parisians—Rigolboche—One Cent for the Syrian Christians—Miscellaneous.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Paris, Thursday, Sept. 6, 1860.

Since the world has been a world, everything has been at war on this terrestial surface. The ichneumon pursues the crocodile, the swallow darts upon the fly, dogs worry cats, and man caresses his rifled cannon; even the tender dove, alas! is devoured by the sparrow-hawk, and why should there not be a war of the elements? The sun has fallen low in the horizon, men's shadows are growing terribly long at mid-day, and yet we have had no Summer, no one warm day—nothing but a painfully drawn out war of the elements for the ascendency. As a Winter it has been mild, but as a Summer a most lugubrious failure. An amateur astronomer suggests in the papers that something is wrong at the north pole, just as if the same idea had not already entered every man's brain who goes shivering through the streets. Poor Monsieur Babinet! if fifty thousand people demanded his head, when he made the false prediction about the high Spring tides, how is he going to escape the just wrath of the indignant millions at this last miscalculation? We shall be curious to see how the learned Professor gets through the gauntlet of the saloons this Winter.

Nevertheless, the sun does peer through now and then, and then it is interesting to see the dissimulation of the shivering crowds who "play Summer" in the garden of the Tuileries and on the Champs Elysées, while Winter is penetrating every pore of their bodies. It is a regular example of whistling to keep the courage up. But these streaks of sunshine have the advantage of showing us how many people we have in town, or rather, how few there are at the watering places. And in effect the accounts from the different fashionable resorts are deplorable. Their visitors are few in number, and composed of those only, we are permitted to believe, who have let their homes for the Summer, and are thus obliged to remain away. The bathing houses of the Seine have not had a solitary swimmer during the season, and certain merchants, who depend upon the heat for their sales, have had a season that will rank among the deadest of the dead.

But the Parisians are like turtles. One ray of sunshine is enough to bring them out on to their logs. One ray of sunshine suffices to fill the Garden of the Tuileries with its usual society of nurses and their babies, and of nurse and baby admirers—the first consisting of soldiers, and the second of babyless old bachelors. The sun, too, brings out the bands, which are held to play every day in the public places, according to regulation, and then there is nothing more curious than the inspection of the different crowds in the different places. Thus, at the Place Vendome, where the band plays at the foot of the Napoleon column, the old soldiers of the first Empire, those who carry the St. Helena medal, most do congregate. In the Garden of the Tuileries, where the crowd is immense, the variety is also immense; but here the monde galant is conspicuous in all its degrees of respectability—pretty women, who, under the pretext of listening to the music, are suspected of designs upon the hearts of the male promenaders; here, too, are crowds of young clerks, escaped from the neighboring ministrys, officers in citizens' dress, foreigners, distinguished and otherwise, whole families, come to see the promenaders and hear the music, and the usual sprinkling of soldiers—which is never small. At the magnificent Garden of the Luxembourg, we see the orchestra surrounded and applauded by petits rentiers, mothers and their children, without nurses, and a large admixture of under professors, students and grisettes. At the Palais Royal, the crowd offers quite another physiognomy; it is there the commercial people, the petite bourgeosie, that large class of persons who come to the Palais Royal to the two, three and four franc dining places, which abound over the arcades of glittering jewelry; it is the chosen resort also of the lorettes in decadence, who have left their youth and beauty in the more brilliant quarters of the Boulevards and Mabille, and who are only too glad to accept the first arm that offers itself for a dinner at any price. From their always being alone, and sitting quietly and modestly aside from the crowd, the Bohemians call these souvenirs of other days les solitaires.

These local idiosyncrasies of the great city are manifested in more ways than one. The popularity of the different political journals in different sections is a striking illustration of the fact. Thus, the Presse finds most readers, in proportion to other journals, in the Marais; the Siècle is the Bible of the Faubourg St. Antoine, and is taken beside in every grocery in the town; the Constitutionnel and Moniteur go into the ministerial quarters; the Patrie is read at the theatres, by the stock-brokers, and all those in search of the latest news; the Débats and the Gazette de France go to the aristocratic Faubourg St. Germain, while the Opinion Nationale, the organ of Garibaldi, is most sought after under the arcades of the Odeon, the rendezvous of the literary people of the Latin Quarter, and at the Café du Cardinal, the rendezvous of the rich Italians on the Boulevard. The two paper-venders of the Odeon sell several hundred copies of the Opinion each evening, while the Café du Cardinal is obliged to take a dozen copies for the use of its coffee-drinkers. The advanced ground taken by this young paper on all the liberal questions of the day has rapidly brought its circulation up to the neighborhood of twenty thousand.

The great city has its caprices as well as its local peculiarities. I wrote to you two years and more ago of a famous dancer of the can-can who had just then appeared at the masked balls of the Grand Opera, and who was nick-named Marguerite la Huguenote, because of her predilection for the costume of the ancient French Protestants. I attempted then to describe the wonderful divagations of her dance, the gracefulness of her most violent contortions, and her simple manners and quiet good humor in the midst of her choregraphic triumphs. Since then this girl has been adopted by the Parisians; she has been caught up and carried on the shoulders of the public; she has been accepted as the queen and type of her class; her name is repeated as often in the literary journals as is that of Lincoln, for example, in your political journals. She calls herself Rigolboche, and an album of lithographs has been published called Rigolbochomania, executed by the best artists and sold by thousands. Then she published her Memoirs, written by an incognito writer known to be M. Ernest Blum, and these Memoirs have arrived at their sixth edition in two months. Each edition, it ought to be avowed, contains a different photograph of the heroine in some one of her masked ball costumes. Princes and Dukes are proud to be numbered among the admirers of this new deity, and if the carriages are not exactly obliged to fall into line before her door, the candidates for admission to her parlor are obliged to inscribe their names in advance. With Leotard, the handsome acrobat of the Circus, turning the heads of all the women, and Rigolboche, with her fine legs, doing the same for the men, who will say that Muscle is not King?

But the most remarkable feature in the history of Rigolboche's popularity is the succession of books provoked by the publication of her Memoirs. First we have, The Truth on Rigolboche; then Down with Rigolboche. Then there appeared a book entitled Those Ladies, (a designation sufficient for the wise,) which contained the biography, with portraits, of some of the most famous members of the bohéme galante, rivals of Rigolboche. This was followed by Those Gentlemen, and this in turn by The Ladies of the Latin Quarter. Then, as these books were all written in this quarter, there appeared a book entitled Down with the Latin Quarter. Then some one took up the defense in The Truth on the Latin Quarter—and still other books are pointing on the horizon. This beats the famous series of Lui et Elle all to pieces.

The greatest inconvenience of the popularity of Rigolboche is the vogue she has given to the can-can in the public gardens; for what in Rigolboche is grace and symmetry, becomes in others a voluptuous indecency, and within two years the whole physiognomy of the public balls has changed. They are no longer a very fit place for a pater familias to promenade his children.

The veil that covered for years the famous palace of the Marchioness of Paiva, on the Champs Elysées, (it ought never to have been raised,) has at length fallen, and the curious public are permitted to inspect a portion of it from the street. The style is that of the Renaissance, inlaid with porphyry and malachite; the stairs are built of the same precious stones; the plafond of the principal parlor is decorated with gothic pendants, resembling so many stalactites, which produce the most bizarre and original effect; the cornices and window decorations are most elaborately carved, and altogether the house is a gem of perfection and good taste. The house and ground have cost four millions of francs; the house is yet to be furnished, and foolish young Barons are growing scarce in Prussia! When the exterior of the house was finished, Mme. de Paiva, who has a weakness for precious stones, as we see by the number she has buried in her house, gave a whole handful of rubies, emeralds, turquoises and fine pearls to the workmen.

In the subscriptions taken up for the Christians of Syria, we find on the list of the journal, Le Monde, the following: "A poor widow of Arras, one sou." This is the widow's mite, and has as much intrinsic value as M. de Rothschild's ten thousand francs. Everybody has remarked this subscription, and everybody has been touched by it. As a journal remarks, this sou represents a thousand francs for the banker, a hundred for the fashionable young man or woman, twenty for the man of letters, one for the workman, and for all, a subscription for a greater or lesser sum. That single sou is destined to produce thousands.

The numbering of the objects of Art in the various public museums in Paris, the Louvre and Luxembourg Palaces containing the greater part of them, has just taken place, and the number reaches beyond 40,000.

In order to estimate the relative value of the different bridges across the Seine to the circulation of the city, men are charged from time to time to count the number of men, horses and wagons which cross in the course of the day. The Pont Neuf and the new Pont-au-Change, both leading to the island, are the most frequented, and the other day a count on the Pont-au-Change gave the following results: Footmen crossed, 108,210; carriages, 18,403; horses ridden or led, 931. If we add to these the persons contained in the carriages, or on the horses, we arrive at a figure of something like 200,000 persons who crossed the bridge in twelve hours.

By the opening of a new section, passengers are now able to go from Paris to Vienna direct by rail in the short space of 37½ hours, and this time will be shortened when the railroad bridge at Strasburg is finished.

Mrs. Coston, of the United States, owner of her late husband's invention, known as "Coston's Telegraphic Night Signals," has had these signals tried by the French Government, and so favorable was the first report that the Minister of Marine has named a Committee of eight officers, with Gen. Preuilly as President, to examine further into their merits, and to negotiate their purchase. The Committee, as a preliminary, have ordered a considerable supply of these instruments from the establishment of Mr. Lilliendahl, of New-York, their manufacturer. MALAKOFF.

THE EUROPEAN CRISIS.

PROGRESS OF THE GREAT DRAMA.

From the London Times, Sept. 11.

The great European drama advances with even and measured strides towards its consummation, and the entrance of Garibaldi into the Neapolitan capital has coincided with an event of perhaps equal significance in the development of the spectacle. Austria and Russia are once more allies. The Emperor Alexander has announced his "sincere desire for a perfect reconciliation" with the Emperor Francis Joseph, and measures, we learn, are to be instantly taken for terminating the estrangement between these two Sovereigns, which has become "no longer tolerable." There should be nothing on the face of this intelligence to create either surprise or suspicion. It is as good for crowned heads as for others to dwell together in unity, and it is fortunate for the world when its rulers are at peace. But does this new alliance bespeak nothing beyond the resumption of those terms of amity which, it is now discovered, "ought never to have been interrupted?" Has it no conditions arising out of the present state of Europe? These are questions of grave importance, and naturally suggestive of grave conjectures.

The first impression likely to be produced on the public mind will be connected with the advance of Garibaldi, and the peril consequently impending over the Austrian dominions. The Italian Liberator is not only expected to give freedom to Venetia, but is supposed to be reckoning on the insurrection of Hungary in aid of his designs. If Austria has the Italians on her hands in the Venetian provinces, can she cope with an army of patriots on the Theiss? It is but eleven years ago that Austria, though victorious in Lombardy, found herself utterly unable to subdue the people of Hungary, who had risen against her rule, and it is reasonable to infer that what she failed to achieve then she would be incompetent, under less favorable circumstances, to accomplish now. But it will be also recollected to what expedient, when thus endangered, the Imperial Government recurred. The Court of Vienna concluded a Convention with the Court of St. Petersburg, in virtue of which a Russian army marched into Hungary, and by its intervention preserved the crown of St. Stephen for the Austrian Emperor. With so very modern a precedent before us, then, it would be hard to avoid a suspicion that a sudden alliance between Austria and Russia provides anew for the security of Hungary against menaces which, besides being formidable to the authority of one Emperor, are by no means agreeable to the traditional policy of the other.

If these, however, are the arrangements now in prospect, we can only say that they are certainly ill-timed, and will probably prove abortive. Snort as is the interval between 1849 and 1860, it has been long enough to put an end to those principles on which the last intervention proceeded. "Non-intervention" is now the maxim of the day. The appearance of a Russian army either in Italy or Hungary would not be to the satisfaction of Europe, nor, we may safely add, to the advantage of Russia herself. Hardly, in fact, has she yet recovered from her indignation and anger at the "huge ingratitude" with which her last favors were received. Those favors did little good to either side. It was because Austria recovered Hungary by this vicarious conquest that she treated the Hungarians as a conquered people, and provoked that very disaffection which alarms her now. It was because Russia got such small thanks for her assistance and such poor returns in her own hour of need that the estrangement occurred between the two Courts which is ceasing only at this very time. Certainly, neither Power can be under any temptation to enact such passages over again.

The conditions, too, of the case are now materially changed. At the former period Austria had Sardinia alone to deal with on the banks of the Po. She has now to face all Italy by Sardinia's side, and a Power more formidable still behind Sardinia's back. The counsels of the French Emperor are inscrutable, but it is by no means certain that the Emperor Napoleon would patiently submit to the interference of another State in the Italian struggle, and, if the alliance of Russia on the one side is balanced by the hostility of France on the other, it can hardly be thought that Francis Joseph would gain by the transaction. Better far would it be to create confidence at home than to look for these ill-omened succors from abroad. The most successful intervention of foreign armies would fail in giving any real stability to the Austrian Throne. That position can only be acquired by such government as removes disaffection, and such an administration as produces content. The Hungarians themselves are at this moment suggesting the best course which the Austrian Emperor could adopt. They ask for nothing but their rightful constitution under Francis Joseph, their King. They acknowledge themselves his subjects, but only on the ancient and original conditions between crown and people. They desire no other ruler, if he will rule them according to law. If he will but restore Hungary to itself, the kingdom will be his own, and will no longer offer any standing ground either to Garibaldi or the Czar. We rejoice to observe, from our latest telegrams, that this policy seems to be approving itself at Vienna, and, if that should be actually the course of affairs, the Russian alliance will either be superfluous or must receive some new interpretation.

Another interpretation it will not be difficult to find. Already the Austrian Government has thought it necessary to disclaim the intention of joining a coalition against France, and already has it declared that its alliances with other Powers are only to be understood as the natural resumption of friendly relations with the chief States of Europe. The terms of the contradiction express with sufficient perspicuity the nature of the impression prevailing. Austria, as the Power chiefly injured by the warlike policy of France, was to take advantage of the epidemic of distrust to place herself at the head of a coalition, and to secure in this manner, through the common apprehension of Europe, an activity of sympathy which she failed to obtain in her own proper character, or for her own proper cause. We cannot pretend to deny the plausibility of these views. After the declarations made by our own Ministers in Parliament, after the ominous hints thrown out just a fortnight ago by a Continental journal presumed to speak the sentiments of the Russian Court, after the interview at Töplitz, and after the uneasy murmurs of Europe, it would be impossible to deny that the recent policy of France has set all States alike upon reconsidering their connections, and placing their houses in order. The annexation of Savoy gave a new aspect to the Italian War, and a new moral to the campaign. As long as France was thought to have gone to war "for an idea," Europe remained tolerably easy, but when she appeared to have gone to war for a province the case was suddenly altered, and what had been merely Austria's difficulty became everybody's danger. If this, therefore, rather than the former interpretation, should be the solution given to the tidings now announced, we could feel no surprise.

We retain, however, an unshaken conviction that the simple policy of non-intervention will be the best for all States alike. The days are gone by for a coalition against France as completely as for an intervention against Hungary. Any such coalition as that suggested, unless it were rigorously confined to mutual guarantees against aggression, would end by placing France at the head of Liberalism against Absolutism in a war of opinions. Any intervention in Hungary would give an indefinite and sanguinary extension to that revolution which, with universal sympathy and with little bloodshed, is now advancing to its end. The only safe intervention is that which Francis Joseph can immediately exercise on his own behalf. Let him step between his Hungarian subjects and their misjudging governors, let him once more give Hungary its national institutions, and he may then, secure on his throne, await the shock of arms in Venetia with the conviction that, at any rate, he has little to lose.

LAST DAYS OF THE BOURBON IN NAPLES.

Correspondence of the Times.

Naples, Monday, Sept. 3, 1860.

The last scene of the last act is about to be enacted. The sceptre is visibly slipping from the hands of Francis II., and in a few days—perhaps hours—he will have ceased to reign. When I last wrote to you the Ministerial crisis was still pending; indeed, the truth is, that things are now in that state that any Government whatever is impossible with the present King, and whoever are his councilors will have only to close his eyes and assist at his obsequies. The advantage of retaining the present Ministers will be that the transition will be comparatively tranquil; if they are changed the funeral rites of the King of Dahomey would not, perhaps, exact more victims.

After I had dispatched my Saturday's letters it was known that Gen. Cotrufiano had sent in his resignation to the Ministers, and expressed his hopes that they would now remain in power. At the same time the National Guard again communicated with them, and stated that if they did not remain they would begin the revolution in Naples. As circumstances, however, were, Ministers considered it impossible to remain with dignity or advantage to the country, and en masse again sent in their written resignation. "We have been called traitors," they said. "We have the troops against us, and no longer enjoy the confidence of the Sovereign; we are supported by the National Guard and the people, it is true, and are their Ministers rather than the King's; but this is not according to the principles of the Constitution, and we therefore earnestly beg your Majesty to choose a transition Ministry. Besides, we will not undertake the responsibility of the war against Garibaldi and his followers, for it will be altogether useless." Such was the manner in which the Ministers addressed His Majesty, and, put into plain English, it means this: "If your Majesty will abandon all self-defence, we will serve you, but if you are determined to risk an action, we will persist in resigning, and then barricades will be formed directly." The choice left to Francis II., then, is revolution or abdication, and this is the end of that vast structure of despotism which Ferdinand II. reared with so much labor, and cemented with so much blood. On Sunday morning, Ministers met in the Council Chamber, and waited for some decision on the part of His Majesty, but none came; but later in the day De Martino was sent for by the King, and requested to form an Administration. This, however, De Martino declined doing, and the King exclaimed in great sadness: "Then I am abandoned by all." So stood the matter on Sunday night. It is clear to me that the Ministers have no hopes or intentions, even if they remain in power, of doing anything more than keep things together till Garibaldi comes. To them, as to all in Naples, it is evident enough that the game is up, and that all they can do for the country, at present, is to make the fall, or the transition, (as you like,) as easy as possible. Up to the present time their conduct has been beyond all praise, and I must name, in addition to Romano and De Martino, Gen. Pianeli, who has supported the most liberal element of the Ministry with a firmness and consistency which have given much satisfaction. There was an impression in the city that the Ministerial difficulties had been arranged, and in consequence, on Saturday and Sunday night there was a partial illumination of the city, and bills were placarded bearing the inscription, "Viva Garibaldi!" "Viva Romano!" Whatever may be the aspirations of parties, the convictions of most men are that the Bourbons are incompatible with the liberties of the Neapolitans. It is impossible for any generous mind to contemplate the position of Francis II. without compassion. Not gifted by nature with much intelligence, kept in gross ignorance, and reared in a school of political despotism and religious bigotry by his father, misguided and betrayed by evil counselors in the early part of his reign, and finally abandoned by his oldest uncle and by the contemptible nobility and parasites who have hitherto supported or tolerated the corruptions of the Government so long as they were to their own advantage, he sits alone in his palace, the last Sovereign of his family, hesitating as to the moment when he is to lay down both crown and sceptre. Close to his palace crowds are reading and rejoicing in the latest dispatches from the camp of the enemy, who is advancing by rapid marches—an enemy whom he has no force to repel; and not much more distant resides the Minister of a Sovereign who subscribes himself the "beloved cousin" (or by some similar hypocrisy) of Francis II., at the same time that he is doing all that in him lies to drive him from the throne. The position is a hard one, I repeat, created by the Bourbons themselves; it is a fulfillment of the great decree that the sins of the fathers shall be visited on the children; but yet all this can never render us insensible to the demands of a generous compassion, nor otherwise than indignant at the treachery and baseness which have marked some of the principal agents in the great movement which is now near its termination, in Naples at least.

Naples, Tuesday, Sept. 4.

It is generally understood that the Ministers of Spain and Austria, and perhaps of Belgium, would leave with his Majesty. Baron Brenier has no instructions, and Mr. Elliott, I take it for granted, would remain here. I speak on the supposition of his Majesty going to Gaeta, though it is just as probable that he will leave the kingdom altogether. As for placing himself at the head of the army, his Majesty cannot be said to have an army to command. During the whole of Sunday night boats were going backwards and forwards between the land and the Spanish vessels with royal property, a fact which would seem to point to those vessels as the Royal refuge, and to a flight to a foreign land. The Queen Mother is already in Albano.

We have a most imposing fleet, representing every nation in Europe. Even the Pope has his flag lying off the Villa. On that side of the city there are fourteen vessels of war, and as many off Santa Lucia. The Cressy, Capt. Elliott, came in from Malta on Saturday, and the Cæsar, Capt. Mason, is to leave today. A French two-decker came in on Sunday, to replace one which left a few days before. Four large French river boats came in on Saturday. The Intrepid came in on Sunday, and went over to Castellamare to take off invalids from the London; and when I add that the Renown came up from Messina last Thursday I shall have completed all my naval news.

THE EX-KING OF NAPLES AT GAETA.

From Le Nord.

The news of the departure of the King of Naples for Capua and Gaeta is now certain. This news has been expected for some days. It still produces, nevertheless, a considerable effect, for it had been imagined that the King would make, under the walls of his capital, with the troops that have remained faithful to him, a last attempt at resistance. It is at Gaeta—that is, in the strongest position there is in the Kingdom, regarded in a military point of view—that he will await a return of good fortune, or endeavor to provoke it. He withdraws with a contingent of troops still respectable enough—being 30,000 strong, it is said—and which, considering the excellence of the position, must be taken into account. In fact, if in a political point of view the abandonment of Naples is quite a revolution of itself, in a military point of view it is an act of dexterity, or at least of prudence. Naples is open, or rather it opens itself spontaneously. Before even the King left it, Francis had, we may say, ceased to reign there. The movement of men's minds there, the impulse that carries away the population and drives it to throw itself into the arms of Garibaldi, might cause a complete dissolution of the last nucleus of strength at the young King's disposal. The city, it is true, is entirely commanded by Fort St. Elmo, a stronghold not easily to be taken, cut out of the rock, and at some places standing on an elevation of eighty feet. But to remain master of that point would be to put himself under the necessity of a painful, and probably a fruitless operation—that of bombarding the Capital of the Continental Kingdom, as he had the Sicilian Capital—an inhuman proceeding, and, therefore, most impolitic. The young King, yielding to the advice of his most prudent friends, has preferred retiring to Gaeta, where he will add to the advantage of a royal residence, and of a still stronger military position, that of remaining master of a part of his States, and approaching nearer to the only ally he has preserved—the Pope—whose Government has at its disposal 25,000 men, pretty well organized, it is said, by Gen. Lamoricière. Gaeta, a fortified town of 14,000 inhabitants, including its three suburbs, is situate in the Terra di Lavoro, of which the administrative capital is Caserta, between Capua and Naples. It consists of irregular works, rising in terraces one above the other, on a rocky headland of the Mediterranean Coast. On the land side the narrow approach is closed by strong batteries; a fort commands the harbor, and at the extremity of this point there is the old tower called Rolando's. Gaeta was besieged in 1800 by the French, and in 1815 by the Austrians. Very strong by nature, this position is rendered yet stronger by the configuration of the surrounding locality. For any one master of Gaeta, and having a sufficient number of troops at his disposal, it is easy to defend San Germano on the northeast, and Capua on the southeast; and these three points form a triangular district, in which the last efforts of the Bourbon monarchy will probably be concentrated. San Germano and Capua are both situate about ten leagues from Gaeta; San Germano, on the Fiume-Rapido, is at the foot of Mount Cassino, the summit of which is crowned by the ancient and vast abbey of the same name. This position may be used as a military retreat, and can easily be defended. Capua, on the Volturno, possesses an arsenal, a military hospital, and 8,000 inhabitants. The Volturno is crossed there by means of a stone bridge, and on the right bank of the river there is a strong tête-de-pont. A strong casemate has been constructed to the east of the town. Capua lies, as is well known, half-way between Naples and Gaeta. It is from that point that the King will reach his last asylum. Doubtless he would leave behind him at this intermedtate station a sufficient number of troops to defend it, if the war now being waged by him were a regular war, but he is rather a spectator than an actor in the scene. The situation is controlled by unexpected events; and, if he merely intends waiting for events, he will perhaps do nothing more than concentrate his forces in Gaeta. This we shall soon learn by news from the Two Sicilies.

RUPTURE BETWEEN PIEDMONT AND ROME.

Correspondence of the Constitutionnel.

Turin, Friday, Sept. 7, 1860.

The situation has become much more serious than before. It was believed that the absence of the Ministers of War and of the Interior, MM. Fanti and Farini, would last several days, and general surprise was occasioned this morning by the news that they had arrived by a special train. They proceeded direct from the station to the palace, where the King and the other Ministers were waiting for them to hold a council. I cannot tell what was decided, but I know that the council sat for a long time, and that in the evening M. Fanti left for Bologna. But the gravest piece of news is that an ultimatum has certainly been sent to the Pontifical Government, calling on it, in order to insure the tranquillity of the Sardinian frontiers, and for the sake of humanity, to dissolve immediately the free corps which have been organized in its States under the orders of Gen. de Lamoricière. The note of the Government insists that, as these corps are in great part comprised of Austrian soldiers, who have taken service with the consent and even by order of their Government, their presence in the Pontifical territory constitutes a flagrant violation of the principle of non-intervention which was admitted and recognized in the peace of Villafranca. It is not necessary to add that every one here expects that the answer of the Court of Rome will be in the negative, and that consequently hostilities will be immediately commenced. Military measures have been taken here in provision of such a contingency. In addition to the concentration of troops in the Cattolica and at Piacenza, which has been already mentioned, a corps-d'armée of 40,000 men is being formed at Arezzo, in Tuscany, under the command of Gen. De Sonnaz, for the purpose of acting in Umbria, if necessary. Will Austria see with an indifferent eye the conflict which is about to take place between Gen. De Lamoricière and the Sardinian army? Last night we received the news that the Austrians had made an extraordinary concentration of troops in the Mantuan territory, on this side of the Po, their central point being the village of Borgoforte. It is said that the corps-d'armée assembled consists of 50,000 men.

Correspondence of the Journal des Débats.

Turin, Friday, Sept. 7, 1860.

The situation is becoming very serious. The maintenance of the temporal power of the Pope in the City of Rome only, and the suppression of the pontifical army, are facts of no little importance, in whatever light they may be viewed. On the other hand, it is certain that the annexation of the Marches and Umbria is absolutely indispensable, if Naples and Piedmont are to form one kingdom. It is equally certain that the Government intends, by occupying these provinces with the regular army, to put an end to Garibaldi's mission, unless he should be disposed to make war on the French at Rome, or the Austrians in Venetia. Political reasons, therefore, are not wanting to explain, if not to justify, the occupation of the Marches and Umbria. Every one here seems to think that war with Austria is not unlikely to be the result of all this, notwithstanding the assurances of non-intervention. The Government has been informed that the Austrians, during the last two days, have been concentrating considerable forces at Borgoforte, from which point Romagna and the duchy of Modena are equally menaced. Military preparations are consequently pushed on with the utmost activity.

From the Opinione of Turin, Sept. 8.

Can we remain indifferent lookers-on when the massacres of Perugia are about to be renewed? Were the Government to stand still, the people would not. We have seen the trouble occasioned by M. Nicotera, with his brigade of volunteers, who did not enjoy the sympathy of the populations. This expedition has been prevented, but on the other hand, our Government has, in consequence, assumed a sacred duty towards the people of Umbria and the Marches, who, being subject to a military dictatorship, which is the more tyrannical as it is exercised by a foreigner, and enforced by foreign mercenaries, have no other hope of deliverence but from our State. Can we refuse them our aid in the hour of peril? A conflict may be avoided, if the Pontifical Government be wise enough to understand that 25,000 foreign mercenaries cannot be allowed to encamp in the very heart of Italy, with the sentiments of hatred and aversion which animate them against the Italian people. There is no other Government in Europe which dares to prop itself up with foreign mercenaries, and our Government has understood that such a situation must cease at any cost. Should new complications be inevitable, it may be as well not to delay, but to assume the responsibility of measures which it would be too late to adopt were we to wait until we are attacked.

From an Editorial in the Constitutionnel.

An insurrection has broken out in the Marches, and the name of King Victor Emanuel is used as a rallying cry. The Sardinian army is in movement, and we must expect from one moment to another an act of Piedmontese intervention in the Pontificial territory. It is with sorrow that we see the King's Government engaging in a path in which it can only meet with dangers. This aggression, if it be accomplished, will incontestably separate it from the Emperor's policy. France, which protects the Pope's authority at Rome, cannot do otherwise than blame acts of which the avowed object is to dethrone him by an armed coöperation given to insurrection in the provinces which have hitherto remained faithful. In this adventurous policy, to which she has been led by foreign advice, which, however, will not be followed by any support, Piedmont will be sure to be isolated. It is not by seconding revolt that she can put down revolution, and in preceding it to-day she is sure to be led away by it afterwards. If, therefore, there be still time, we hope that Piedmont, which owes so much to France, will not depart from the principles and the respect of international law which can alone preserve to her our alliance. We hope that the loyalty of King Victor Emanuel will cause him to prevent his Government from committing a fault which would be a misfortune to Italy.

RAPPROCHEMENT BETWEEN AUSTRIA AND RUSSIA.

Correspondence of the Official Leipsic Gazette.

Berlin, Friday, Sept. 7, 1860.

There is no longer any doubt entertained in Diplomatic circles as to the Emperor Francis Joseph taking part in the interview at Warsaw. The affairs of Italy will chiefly engage attention there, and it is not difficult to foresee in what manner they will be regarded. The principle of non-intervention will be adhered to so far as Italy is concerned, but Garibaldi cannot be permitted to attack Venetia. Although, moreover, so foolish an enterprise could not have a chance of success, it has been deemed fit not only to instruct the Cabinet of Turin, to a certain extent, of the ulterior intentions of the great Northern Powers, but also to transmit indirectly some information to Garibaldi himself as to his own position with regard to them in relation to the Italian movement. We have the more right to hope that these warnings will not fail of their due effect, since England also has conveyed some salutary recommendations to the Cabinet of Turin.

Correspondence of the Börsenhalle.

Vienna, Wednesday, Sept. 5.

We have already announced that the Grand Duke of Hesse had willingly offered to act as mediator in an attempt to bring about a rapprochement between Russia and Austria. Count Rechberg having informed the Grand Duke of the extreme limit of the concessions which Austria is disposed to make to Russia (it being well known here, that without making some such concessions, it will not be possible to weaken the relations which exist between Russia and France,) the august mediator also ascertained from M. de Balabine what where the demands of Russia, which might serve as the basis of an understanding with Austria. M. de Balabine declared that this demand took him quite unexpectedly, and that it was impossible for him to give a complete answer. He nevertheless consented to indicate officieusement the conditions of a possible agreement. As one essential point in these conditions, a complete revision of the treaty of 1856 is mentioned. We are not yet aware of the reception which these communications have met with in the cabinet of Vienna.

FRENCH INTERVENTION.

ENGAGEMENT BY ENGLAND, AUSTRIA AND PRUSSIA.

From Le Nord.

We have been for some days in possession of an important communication, which we have hesitated hitherto to publish, despite the confidence we place in the correspondent who forwarded it to us. We publish it now, having received from the latter the confirmation of his exactitude. Moreover, it appears to us suitable to the present state of affairs.

It concerns an arrangement on three points which is said to have been agreed upon quite recently between England, Austria and Prussia, and the object of which would be to prevent any ulterior intervention of France, by force of arms, either in Italy or elsewhere. The three points are as follows. The three Powers engage themselves:

1. To oppose any military intervention of France in Italy, under any pretext whatsoever.
2. To oppose any other military intervention of France in Europe, without a preliminary understanding with the Powers.
3. To oppose any territorial extension of France, either by means of conquest or negotiation."

If we publish this information to-day (adds Le Nord,) which we have had for some days in our possession, it is because we have reason to believe that we are not the only persons cognizant of the facts, and that the principal Cabinets of Europe are already informed of them.

A FRENCH VIEW OF THE PRINCE OF WALES IN AMERICA.

From a French pamphlet headed "The Emperor in Algeria," we extract the following:

"While Algeria proposes to disguise her sufferings by displaying her hopes, the son of the Queen of England, heir to the British crown, has crossed the ocean. He goes to a rich colony which his ancestors conquered from France, whose language and usages have not yet been forgotten. On the frontiers of that rich country flourishes a Power whose expansion seems unlimited. It was founded by men who shed their blood to wrest it from the tyranny of his forefathers, and whom the aid of France enabled to convert a revolt into a triumphant revolution. The son of the Queen of England will traverse many a battle-field where the English arms were covered with glory, and where the blood of the insurgents flowed in torrents. Nevertheless, everywhere will the young Prince be welcomed with the sume enthusiasm and cordiality. He will hardly perceive the passage from his mother's dominions into the neighboring States. The descendants of Frenchmen will forget their origin to do homage, in his person, to the Government which allows them to enjoy a liberty so complete that emancipation is no longer to be desired. The Republicans will not think they are betraying their principles by applauding the representative of a liberal Monarchy, which has profited by the lessons they inflicted on it. He may even forget that he is a Prince, for nobody will ask him for anything. No accusing voice will be uplifted against slowness of administration and abuses of power, and against functionaries faithless to their duty. None will implore increased liberty or subsidies from the English Parliament. In no town will he find scandalous trials and burdened finances and urgent need of reforms. Gigantic monuments will attest the power of a nation which attains the age of virility, and which exercises its productive strength in the construction of prodigious bridges and of railroads of immense length. Everywhere he will find steamboats, manufactures, and agricultural improvements. The uncultivated land of Canada belongs to nobody, and those who desire to fertilize it find help, credit and protection. No formality shackles the cultivator's energy, no vexatious clauses prevent him from selling, or paralyze his energy. An incessant current of emigration flows to those fertile shores, and enriches them with the surplus population of the encumbered states of old Europe. Those who once set foot on this fruitful land for the most part remain there, and induce friends and relations to follow their example. They do not recross the Atlantic cursing the day when they first thought of confiding their families, their fortunes, and their future to the country which prospers under the reign of British laws. What has produced these marvels? Is it the sacrifices the mother country has imposed upon herself? By no means; two very simple things, two inexpensive virtues,—liberalism and tolerance,—have sufficed. Such is the talisman perfidious Albion has employed in Canada.

BRITISH HARVEST PROSPECTS.

From the London Economist.

A period of dry weather, extending now from Thursday, the 30th of August, has considerably improved the farmers' prospects, and it is found that though the grain has not this year ripened in due season, still it has ripened, and should we have a dry September, the greater part of our grain crops will be securely gathered into the stack-yards. The harvest, however, is full five weeks later than that of last year, and at least three weeks more backward than in seasons which are not considered early. As is commonly the case where past apprehensions have been partially relieved, opinion goes into the opposite extreme; predictions that the crops will not fall below the average, and statements that they are better than last year's crops, are freely hazarded. We availed ourselves of two days at Barnet Fair to compare the statements of farmers and others from different parts of the country, with each other, and with our own more limited observation. The general results seem to be these. On the very dry soils, the gravels and the sands, which commonly suffer from want of moisture in ordinary Summers, the crops are said to be unusually abundant. One farmer, occupying sandy land in Leicestershire, told us that his corn crops had never been so good, and that his roots exceeded anything he had before been able to grow. In Bedfordshire, from the reports of occupiers of similar soils, the crops are very good. On chalk and other light soils, of a character less thirsty than we have before referred to, the plant is often thin, and though the ears are full, they are generally short and not thick-set as in seasons when we have a happier combination of rain and sunshine than we have experienced during the past Spring and Summer. On the wide breadths of land which constitute the clays, the strong loams and the innumerable combinations of clay and gravel with tenacious subsoils, and requiring drainage, the crops will be for the most part deficient. Exceptions there are, where the land has been well drained and is in clean and good condition, and where the wheat will be much superior to that of last year. Then the heavy straw was much laid, and, being followed by extremely hot sunshine, the corn never became completely developed. And this appears certain, the weight per bushel of wheat throughout the country will be heavier than last year's wheat. It appears that the early white wheats, of which large quantities have appeared in Mark-lane, are more sprouted than was generally believed; and it seems that the grain of the wheat crop is considerably riper than the green condition of the straw would indicate; consequently, many farmers began to reap, when, according to ordinary observation, the crop was far too green. This, however, will render it necessary to keep the wheat longer in the field than in ordinary seasons; and the unusual growth of weeds, even on the best-farmed lands, will also delay the carrying of the crops. A large sheep-feeder remarked to us the other day that he had never known so much sheep-feed on the stubbles as there would be this Autumn, from our having had a wet Autumn, a wet Winter and a wet Summer in succession. These circumstances increase the anxiety of farmers for the continuance of the present dry weather. Peas and beans are large crops, though the beans are not corned at all in proportion to the bulk of straw, while peas have remained so long in the field from constant wet that they are much injured, and much of the crop shed on the ground. As regards roots, the turnips are good on dry land, but on the strong soils there was a difficulty both in preparing the land and afterwards in sowing the seed, while the hoeing of the root crops, even where a plant has been obtained, has been extremely ineffective. Mangold wurtzel, save on the very dry soils, is very bad, the plants even where clean making little or no progress, so that heavy weights cannot be generally grown this year, though the Autumn should prove dry and fine. Where Summer fallows are made the land is in a sad state, no weeds have been killed, and there cannot now be a sufficiently powerful sun to destroy them. If wheat, therefore, is sown on long fallows it must necessarily be very foul.

THE PRINCE AT THE WEST.

His Sojourn at Chicago—The Hunting Grounds at Dwight's Station—How the Prince Shoots, and how the Duke Sleeps—A Free and Easy Party.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Chicago, Monday, Sept. 24.

The Prince had an agreeably busy visit here. Long John Wentworth had notified everybody as to his movements, and consequently everybody saw him ride to visit the grain-elevator, the water-works and the Court-house.

The Prince displayed himself on the balcony of his hotel at 1½ o'clock on Saturday. The crowd which assembled to greet him was a motley one—the rich in carriages and gorgeous apparel, and the poor on foot, clad in homespun. The Prince bowed from the centre and the two ends of the balcony, and the crowd cheered each bow to the echo.

Long John took him everywhere, and showed him up as a manager would an elephant. Presentations were made of distinguished citizens, of addresses, and of miniature barrels of flour. The Prince acquiesced in all Long John's suggestions, with the exception of making a longer stay. He also did all that the people demanded, except reply to their salutations with a speech. His coming was anxiously looked for, his presence was hailed with every demonstration of respectful enthusiasm, and his departure, at 2 o'clock on Saturday, was taken to the sorrow of his hospitable hosts, who accompanied him in long procession to the dépôt.

Yesterday he spent at Spencer's Station, some seventy miles from here. To-day he hunts for game, and will appear for the first time in a new and original style of Zouave jacket, short trousers, and high yellow boots. Tuesday he will do the same thing. Wednesday he will be in St. Louis. The rest of the programme, as published in the Times, will be adhered to, except a diversion to Richmond, where he will spend the 6th and 7th proximo. The Duke of Newcastle, Lord Lyons, Gen. Bruce, Lord Tiesdail, Earl Gray and four young men, have gone with him. The Earl St. Germain goes to-day.

The Prince is wonder-struck, the Duke of Newcastle is delighted, and the Royal party are amazed at the Great West, its people and its institutions.

HOWARD.

HUNTING PRAIRIE HENS.

Dwight's Station, Ill., Monday, Sept. 24.

Before leaving Chicago the Prince presented Mr. Rice, of the Michigan Central Railroad, with a handsome diamond pin. On Saturday the Prince and suite hunted, but found no game. They retired at 8 o'clock, and slept till 9 the next day. They attended the Old School Presbyterian Church on Sunday, and heard a sermon on the text, "Blessed are the meek." The rest of the day was spent in answering letters brought by special messenger from the Queen.

They breakfasted to-day at 5½, went out for prairie hens at 12, and lunched at the log hut of Wm. Herman on broiled chickens, bread and butter. They are delighted with the prairies and the abundance of game.

There is a total absence of restraint, and the party is jolly in the extreme. The Prince shoots well, but has the peculiarity of pulling the trigger with his little finger. The Duke sleeps most of the time. All are well and in fine spirits. The courier went to St. Louis this morning to make arrangements for the party.

Lord Renfrew's Visit to this City.

MEETING OF BRITISH RESIDENTS.

A meeting of British residents in New-York was held yesterday afternoon, at the office of the British Consul, No. 17 Broadway, to hear the report of the Committee appointed to communicate with the Prince of Wales, touching his proposed visit to this City, and the proposed demonstrations in his honor by the English residents. Mr. Archibald, the British Consul, briefly stated that the original Committee was increased to forty, and that, with the approval of the Mayor and the leading members of the City (Banquet) Committee, they decided to get up a ball. A liberal beginning had been made with the subscriptions to defray the expenses, when, it being ascertained that a ball would be more agreeable to the Prince than a banquet, the citizens changed their original plan, and decided upon a ball at the Academy. Being well represented in these latter arrangements, the British residents decided not to make any distinctive demonstration, except to tender the Prince an address, if that should be found agreeable. This proposal was conveyed to the Duke of Newcastle, through Lord Lyons. In response, the Duke, with the approval of Lord Renfrew, referred to the invitation already received through the Committee of Citizens, and respectfully declining the proposed demonstration, for the offer of which, however, he was very grateful and obliged. Similar demonstrations had been offered in other places in the United States, and declined. A general satisfaction was expressed at the result of the correspondence, and the Committee were, on motion, discharged.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

Oregon dates are to the 6th inst.

The silver excitement has been brewing in Oregon for several months, and the most extravagant rumors now prevail respecting the mines in different parts of the Cascade Mountains, bordering on Willamette Valley. Several parties have been prospecting during the Summer, and many more are now preparing to go.

Dr. Broy, of Salem, has left at the Statesman office a specimen of silver ore from the Santiam mines, which assayed $4,206 to the ton. Other specimens have averaged from $1,200 to $2,000 per ton.

The Portland News gives the most encouraging reports from the Rock Creek gold mines. It represents that they yield from $5 to $10 a day to the man, and that enough paying ground has been explored for 5,000 miners for several years. Some 350 men are at work on the creek.

Iron ore has been discovered in the Cascade Mountains.

On the 1st of August Lieut. Mullin was at Fort Benton, having completed the military road to that point, and was to leave that post for Walla Walla immediately, repairing and improving as he traveled. This line of road is 393 miles long.

Major Blake was to have left Fort Benton for Walla Walla, with a command of 300 men, on the 6th of August.

The Portland Advocate says it would seem from the arguments of some that the Washoe silver lode belts the continent, as they claim that the Santiam, Walla Walla, and Fort Hope mines belong to the same vein, and there is a probability of their position being more fully demonstrated by the discovery of mines in the vicinity of Mount Hood.

Washington Territory dates are to the 31st ult.

A fire occurred at Fort Vancouver, destroying $5,000 worth of Government stores.

The Olympia Pioneer says that acting Gov. McGill is determined that the Indian pirates who have taken refuge in Victoria shall be brought to punishment. These Indians are believed to be the murderers of the crews of the Helen and Maria and Blue Wing, in 1859.

The Pioneer says that Gov. McGill will take steps at once to overcome the technical objections of our neighbors across the straits.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The British Columbia advices are to the 4th inst.

The Victoria Price Current of the 3d September gives the following summary of mining operations in British Columbia.

The state of mining affairs in British Columbia is very prosperous.

At the latest accounts the Fraser River mines were being rapidly deserted, except by Chinamen, for the new El Dorado at Rock Creek. The rush appears to be general all through the country, as numbers of men were on their way from Oregon and Washington Territory. At the ports on Puget Sound the same excitement prevails, and at many lumber-mills the men have had their wages increased to induce them to stay. With regard to the yield of the mines there is, as might be expected, some difference in the accounts, but all agree that miners are making from $5 to $20 per day to the hand, while some claims are stated on reliable authority to pay $100 a day per man. The country in the neighborhood is said to resemble California in its formation, there being plenty of basin-topped hills, which, on tunneling, proved auriferous. The gold is very coarse, and is found on the bed of the rocks. There is no doubt about the extent of these new gold fields, as good prospects were found by parties in charge of mule trains which passed through this section of the country en route for Quesuella River. The Menatiche River, to the northward of Rock Creek, is also said to be auriferous, and several other similar creeks, as regards the formation and features of the country, are reported this side of Quesuella River. No opinion as to the yield of these mines can be formed by the amount of dust received at Victoria, as a large quantity of it finds its way into Oregon in exchange for provisions, &c. It is a settled thing that a wagon-road must be put through at any cost. There is every reason to believe that his Excellency, now in British Columbia, will see the importance of hurrying on this work by an additional grant, if necessary.

The number of miners in the district around the Rock Creek and Similkamen Mines is estimated at more than 1,000.

From Quesuella River we hear that some large strikes are being made.

Great prices have been paid to Chinamen for claims.

The silver mines are getting up in the market. Several specimens have been shown yielding $400 per ton.

Falconer Discharged.

Matter of Edward Falconer.—This was a habeas corpus for the discharge of Falconer, the noted street-preacher, he having been arrested on Sunday for preaching religion and temperance in the City Hall Park.

From the papers in the case it appeared that the prisoner was taken before Justice Brennan at Essex Market Police Court, but that magistrate refusing to take any action, Officer Cronk, who made the arrest, took his prisoner before Justice Welsh at the Tombs. That Justice also refusing to grant a commitment, the zealous officer took the unfortunate preacher before Mr. Superintendent Kennedy. That official placed the prisoner in the hands of Deputy Carpenter, in whose custody he remained until Monday.

The return to the writ was immediately made by Officer Cronk, and set forth that no process had issued against Falconer to his (deponent's) knowledge.

The matter was before Justice Ingraham, at Chambers of the Supreme Court. After the above facts had been made to appear, his Honor remarked that it was the duty of the officer to discharge Falconer when Justice Brennan refused to grant a commitment. The officer's duties ended upon his taking the prisoner before a magistrate. There being no authority to hold the prisoner, he was of course discharged.

Robert Shannon for relator; Officer Cronk appeared in his own behalf.

Alleged Obstruction of the Highway.

MOTION TO VACATE INJUNCTION.

Pennoyer vs. Brennan.—This case was stated in the Times some months since, at which time the plaintiff obtained a temporary injunction against the defendant restraining him from fencing up the road or lane leading to Stryker's Bay Hotel, kept by plaintiff. The plaintiff alleged that this way to the hotel had been open for thirty years, and was the only means of approach to and exit from his premises. The order to show cause why that injunction should not be made permanent, was now returnable before Justice Ingraham at Chambers of the Supreme Court. The defendant now claimed that the way was originally opened through Stryker's property, by Stryker himself, who had erected the hotel, and that it was never considered anything else than private property—to be closed whenever the owner thereof might desire. Besides, the plaintiff was the defendant's tenant, and had not paid his rent. Means had been taken to dispossess the plaintiff prior to fencing up the way, which the defendant had a right to do, he being the owner of the property.

Decision reserved.

Tribulations of a Boarding-house Keeper.

ACTION TO COLLECT BILLS.

Maria Jarvis vs. James Wilkinson.—This was an action to recover an alleged balance for board, rooms, &c.

The plaintiff kept a boarding-house at No. 121 Bleecker-street, in 1858, and boarded the wife of defendant, as claimed, between Feb. 1st and June 4th of that year, at $15 per week. She now claimed that the defendant owed her $65 on that score. In addition to that sum, she averred the defendant owed her $156 for room, without board, for himself and wife, and an amount loaned to him at various times in small sums, board, rent and loans altogether amounting to $230 50, for which action was brought.

The defendant admitted that he owed plaintiff the $65 first mentioned, but denied the remainder of the bill.

The case was now tried before Justice Leonard, on the Circuit of the Supreme Court, and resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff for $241 30.

Defendant obtained ten days' stay of proceedings, in which to make a case.

Frank Byrne for plaintiff; Robert D. Holmes for defendant.

Motion to Vacate an Assessment.

ACTION OF THE COMMON COUNCIL IMPUGNED.

Application of Rich et al. This was a motion to set aside the assessment for paving 51st-street on the ground that the ordinance authorizing the work was illegal and void, and for the further reason that the property-owners were not allowed an opportunity to be heard in opposition to the assessment, as provided by law.

Mr. Anderson, Assistant Corporation Counsel, objected to the proceeding on the ground that no sufficient reason had been shown for setting aside the assessment. He contended that if any wrong had been done, it was on the part of the Committee of the Common Council—who were not a legal body.

Counsel for the motion replied that the Common Council had acted illegally, and in bad faith in the matter. The ordinance was not valid, because it was not in accordance with the terms of the notice to property-holders, published in pursuance to law. The assessment was besides unjust, in that it put the entire cost of the work upon the owners in Fifty-first-street, while the owners on Forty-ninth-street were assessed only at one-half the actual expense of paving that street.

Counsel also contended that the owners had no sufficient notice of the confirmation of the assessment.

The motion was before Justice Ingraham, at Special Term of the Supreme Court.

Decision reserved.

J. B. Tully for motion; H. H. Anderson opposed.

The Law as to Sureties.

THE COURT WILL NOT REQUIRE A NEW BOND WHERE ONE SURETY ON THE OLD IS RESPONSIBLE.

Eiseman vs. Town.—This was a motion made at Special Term of the Superior Court, before Justice Bosworth, to compel the defendant to give a new bond, with one good surety; the plaintiff alleging that since the giving of a former bond, one of the sureties upon that bond had become insolvent. The following opinion discloses the facts of the case:

Bosworth, J.—Where an inquest which has been taken against a defendant has been set aside by the Court, and the defendant allowed to try the cause in giving a bond with two sufficient sureties, and such bond is given with two sureties who justify, the defendant will not be required to file another bond with one good surety, merely because one of the sureties on the bond actually given has become insolvent. (15 How., 310; 4 Abb., 460.)

In this case there has been a trial since the inquest was opened. The plaintiff recovered, and the Court at General Term has granted a new trial. The moving affidavits do not intimate that one of the sureties is not now abundantly sufficient; and the opposing affidavits represent him to be abundantly good, and the defendant to be personally able to pay any judgment that may be recovered. The motion to compel the defendant to give a new bond with one good surety must therefore be denied.

Foreclosure.

Augustus P. Woodruff vs. John Hurson and Rosene his wife.—This was an action to foreclose a mortgage given by the defendants. The mortgage was for $21,537. Originally $800 on the interest had been paid in sundry payments, which had been indorsed on the bond; the balance only was claimed in the complaint.

The answer set up that the mortgage was void, for usury and for fraud; that the money actually advanced by the plaintiff was only about $14,500, while plaintiff exacted a usurious premium of upwards of $5,000, which defendants agreed to pay—making the amount as actually agreed for $20,000; that, instead of the mortgage being drawn for this sum, the sum of $21,537 was fraudulently inserted.

The action was referred to W. H. Leonard, Esq., who reported that there was no usury and no fraud; but that for $5,000 of the mortgage money there was no consideration, that sum having been included as a gift for services of friendship, &c. That this sum must be deducted from the amount secured, leaving due $19,588 92.

The defendants appealed from the judgment entered on this report. The appeal was heard yesterday in the General Term of the Supreme Court, before Justices Sutherland, Allen and Bonney, but no decision was rendered.

Luther R. Marsh for plaintiff; Mr. Nelson for defendant.

Court of General Sessions.

LAST DAY OF TERM—THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY NOT YET FOUND.

The principal event of yesterday, in this Court, was to have been the renewal of the argument by Messrs. James T. Brady and A. Oakey Hall, for the discharge of Charles Jefferds, charged on the verdict of a Coroner's Jury with the Walton and Mathews murder, on bail, the District Attorney having failed to send the papers in the case to the Grand Jury. On Thursday last, it will be remembered that the argument, after two previous postponements, was commenced, but nothing satisfactory could be arrived at on the subject, owing to the absence of the District Attorney, Mr. Waterbury. It was then arranged that he should be present yesterday, and that the argument should proceed. He was still absent, however, during the first hour of the Court, and a postponement till 1 o'clock took place. At that hour he was still not found, and the case went over till next term. We believe that Mr. Waterbury has not tried a single case in this Court during the last four months.

The Grand Jury brought in a huge batch of indictments, and were discharged with the thanks of the Court.

George Penson, charged with stealing a pocket book from Mr. Edward R. Phelps, containing promissory notes to the amount of nearly $1,600, was placed on trial. The evidence against him was the uncorroborated statement of Henry Shaw, indicted with him as an accomplice, but in whose favor the Assistant District-Attorney entered a nolle prosequi, in order to make him eligible as a witness. Mr. Phelps stated that he had some slight acquaintance with Penson, who came into his store on Feb. 21, with the man Shaw, and asked permission to use his desk for a few minutes, that he might draw up some bills. Leave was readily granted, and after writing some time, Penson asked for an almanac that he might get the date right. Mr. Phelps, having no almanac, went to his overcoat, which was lying across the desk, and took from a pocket the book in question, which contained a calendar, and gave Penson the information he required. He then returned the book to the pocket of the overcoat, and shortly afterwards Penson and Shaw left the store. In a short time Penson returned to make some alterations in his bills. He sat down at the desk, and presently left the second time. In an hour afterwards the pocket-book was missed, and was subsequently traced to Shaw, who, in his testimony yesterday, said that it was confidentially given to him, in trust by Penson, with an injunction to part with it to no one but himself, and that he did not open it, and did not know what it contained till he delivered it up to the officer who arrested him. This story was not believed by the jury, especially as it was contradicted by the evidence for the defence, and without leaving their seats they acquitted the defendant.

W. A. Tompkins, convicted of grand larceny, was sentenced to the State Prison for two years.

James McGill, John Thompson, and James Thompson, pleaded "Guilty" to an attempt at burglary on the premises No. 326 Washington-st., on Sept. 15, and were sentenced—McGill to two years in the Penitentiary, and the others to one year each.

Thomas McGivney was tried for burglary on the premises No. 373 Eighth-street, on Aug. 23. The charge was by no means made out, and he was readily acquitted.

Several prisoners were then arraigned, and pleaded "Not guilty." John Farley pleaded "Guilty" to an attempt at grand larceny, and was sent to the State Prison for two years.

The Court then adjourned for the term.

Street Improvement.

Matter of Crandell Rich and others vs. The Mayor, &c.—This was a petition to vacate an assessment for paving Fifty-seventh-street with Belgian pavement as being void by reason of irregularities, and was heard before Justice Ingraham, at the Supreme Court Chambers.

The grounds alleged were that the property-owners petitioned to have the street paved, they to pay one-half the assessment, whereas the ordinance adopted by the Corporation charged the whole expense upon them; and the Committee of Assessments of the Board of Aldermen promised the owners a meeting to hear objections, when, in fact, the assessment was already confirmed. Motion was made for leave to take testimony.

The Counsel to the Corporation demurred to the petition, as presenting insufficient grounds for any relief whatever. Decision reserved.

Henry H. Anderson for the Corporation; Tully & Quin for the petitioners.

United States District Court.—Sept. 24.

Before Judge Betts.

The United States vs. Frank Jones.—This was a motion to quash an indictment. The defendant was indicted for larceny on the high seas on board the ship Sir Robert Peel. The indictment failed to allege that this was the first District into which the accused was brought after the commission of the offence, and on this ground the motion to quash was granted.

For the motion, Mr. Dwight. In opposition, Mr. Wilcoxson.

Decisions.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Ingraham, J.—Keegan vs. Keegan.—Referred to Wm. H. Elting, Esq.

Hetzel vs. Harmann—Objections not well taken. Motion may be heard at any time on two days' notice.

Brush vs. Brush—Issues settled.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Bosworth, J.—Shanks vs. Rae & Gent.—Where a cause is put off for the term, on payment of the costs of the term, ten dollars for proceedings after notice and before trial, is taxable as part of such costs. Defendant Rae may put in an amended answer on the terms mentioned on a memorandum attached to the motion papers.

Monday, Sept. 24—P. M.

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, Sept. 22, 1860, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of Sept. 15:

Decrease in Loans	$1,200,084
Increase in Specie	27,854
Decrease in Circulation	13,461
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits	1,104,824

Including the Clearing-house operations of the week, which show the inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including, also, the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season:

	Sept. 24, 1859.	Sept. 22, 1860.	Sept. 15, 1860.
Capital	$68,645,000	$69,758,000	$69,758,000
Loans	119,387,320	125,802,644	127,002,728
Specie	20,660,436	18,988,603	18,960,749
Circulation	8,357,206	9,494,332	9,494,332
Gross Deposits	93,460,470	101,308,147	101,117,627
Exchanged	20,729,871	25,553,516	24,257,872
Undrawn	72,730,599	75,754,931	76,859,755
In Sub-Treasury	5,190,520	5,446,804	5,636,367

The Bank return, this afternoon, shows another heavy decrease in Loans and Discounts, which was hardly expected, to the amount of $1,200,000. The Specie, as anticipated, is nearly the same as last week, with $1,202,000 from California, and $120,000 from New-Orleans, to be added to the new week's average. The Money market, which closed easy to the Stock Brokers, and steady with the Discount Brokers, on Saturday of last week, opens to-day without change of rates, which are 6½@7 ₱ cent. Very prime paper passes with facility at or within these figures, while on call from the Stock people there is a fair inquiry at 7 ₱ cent. on miscellaneous collateral, and 6@6½ ₱ cent. on choice security. The news from England is calculated to impart increased steadiness to our market, as the probability is strong that the terms for money in London will soon be reduced to 3½ ₱ cent., if not as low as 3 ₱ cent., and the advance and activity in cotton is calculated to add to the surplus of exchange from the South. To-day the California express reports another shipment of Gold of $929,000 as on the way, and from New-Orleans, by mail, we learn that $537,000 in silver had just been received from Mexico. The rates of exchange to-day are 109⅝@¾ on London, and 5.15f.@5.13¾f. on Paris. At the close of the day the Stock Brokers reported an easier offering of Money at 7 ₱ cent., and in some cases deposits were left with them at 6 ₱ cent. The Bill Brokers also report increased facility in passing choice paper, but with a stricter classification, as, in addition to the suspension noticed in our last report in the Dry Goods line, a firm in the Fancy Goods business, and another in Hats and Furs, are said to-day to be in difficulty, the last having obtained an extension in the panic of 1857.

The business of the week opens active on the Stock Exchange, and a decided and somewhat unexpected buoyancy and a further advance in the New-York shares obtained. The increased firmness in the market was more especially displayed in the afternoon, though the good demand in the morning in the face of the Adriatic's news, which was considered unfavorable for American Stocks and at least indifferent for grain, prepared the way for this fresh advance, New-York Central closing on Saturday afternoon 89¼, opened 88¾ sellers, but soon after rose to 88¾@89@89¼ on the Street, and when the Second Board met went to 89⅞ ₱ cent. Erie took pretty much the same course. At first there were sellers at 36½@37, on which large orders appeared and could not be filled under 37½ ₱ cent. On the Street, between the Boards, the same figure was freely bid, but no additional Stock brought out, so that the new orders in the afternoon carried up the price to 39@38⅞ ₱ cent. Of the Western shares, Illinois Central, Galena and Rock Island were weakest through the forenoon, but the orders were ½ ₱ cent. better at the close, while the other descriptions were all firm and rather ahead of Saturday's prices. A feature in the dealings of the day was a heavy demand, from good parties, for New-York and Harlem shares, the old Stock nearly touching 20 at the afternoon Board. Hudson continued firm and there was a rise of 1@1¼ in the bids for Panama with very little Stock offered. On the Bond list, Missouris were a fraction easier, Virginias and Californias firm, Tennessees and North Carolinas steady. The Construction Bonds of the Illinois Central sold up to 99¼, and Michigan Central 8 ₱ cents. at 102. There was a further improvement of 1 ₱ cent. on Erie Fourths and the unsecured Bonds.

After the formal adjournment of the Second Board this afternoon, a large additional business was done in Erie shares up to 39¼ ₱ cent., and at the very close 39½ ₱ cent. New-York Central closed 89⅞; Rock Island, 78¾; Galena, 77¾; Toledo, 48; Michigan Southern, 23¼; Guaranteed, 48⅞@¾; Illinois Central, 86⅞, seller 10 days' bid, and Panama, 125½ ₱ cent. The general market left off firm.

The following was to-day's business at the Office of the Assistant Treasurer:

Total receipts	$168,802 17
Payments	206,726 37
Balance	5,408,879 93

The Receipts include $88,000 for Customs.

The quotations for Erie and Illinois Central by the Adriatic, based on easier prices from this side, of date about Sept. 1, are lower than by the Europa. The private letters say 18½@18 discount for Illinois, and 28@28½ for Erie. The last London Stock Exchange quotations are as follows:

Great progress obtained by MARY, ainé, in the dyeing of silks, woolens, velvets, cottons, &c., by his new patent process, by which they are dyed in such a state of finish, richness and solidity as to make them equal to those coming immediately from the factories.

He applies his new patent process to the dyeing of dresses, cloaks, mantillas, shawls, ribbons, coats, pants, vests, and to everything appertaining to the toilet of both ladies and gentlemen. He has obtained a brilliant success in those colors recently discovered, and which are Magenta, Solferino and China green, samples of which are exposed for inspection at his Dyeing Establishment, No. 659 Broadway, opposite Bond-st.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Adriatic arrived at such an unseasonable hour that only a brief summary of her news could appear in the morning editions of yesterday's Times. The details that we are enabled to give to-day are important and extremely interesting. Though we have not yet received particulars of Garibaldi's triumphal entry into Naples, we now know most of the events which preceded that culmination of the Neapolitan war. The situation of the Ex-King is said to have been so deplorable as to have excited the compassion of his enemies. He has taken refuge in his own fortified town of Gaeta, whence, as soon as the time comes, he will pass to Capua and to Austrian territory, for he has been advised by the Emperor Francis Joseph not to go to Madrid. The most important news brought by the Adriatic is the announcement of a rupture between Piedmont and Rome. The latter is said to have demanded peremptorily the dissolution of the free corps, enlisted under the orders of Gen. Lamoriciere, as being a body hostile to the peace of Italy. According to latest advices, no Sardinian troops had, as yet, crossed the frontiers, but they were being collected in large numbers in the Cattolica, at Piazenza, and at Arezzo in Tuscany. France, in the semi-official columns of the Constitutionnel, protests against this aggression of Piedmont, and asserts that it "will separate it from the Emperor's policy." Austria, too, is again making extensive warlike preparations, having concentrated a corps d'armée of 50,000 troops in the Mantuan territory. It is officially announced from St. Petersburgh that the Emperors of Austria and Russia are once more friends, and that the meeting of reconciliation between the two Sovereigns will take place at Warsaw. The miscellaneous intelligence received by the Adriatic is also of an interesting character.

We learn by a telegram from New-Orleans that the announcement that Gen. Walker had already been shot was premature. The schooner J. H. Taylor has arrived there, from Truxillo on the 13th, bringing 28 of Walker's men, and the intelligence that Walker and Col. Rudler were in prison, and to be shot on the ensuing day.

We publish this morning correspondence from the City of Mexico to the 28th of August, giving important details of matters which have recently transpired in that country, and which have some of them been previously in telegraphic dispatches and otherwise.

Later advices from California, Oregon, Washington Territory, and British Columbia, reach us by the Pony Express, which arrived at St. Joseph on Sunday evening, having left San Francisco on the 12th inst. The steamer John L. Stephens on the same day left for Panama with the mails and passengers for the Aspinwall steamer. She had on board $1,000,000 in gold, upwards of $900,000 of which were for New-York. Business at San Francisco was somewhat better, an active trade having sprung up with the interior. At the Republican Primaries in the city on the 8th it was decided not to make partisan nominations for local officers, but to join with the People's Party in the coming election. This was regarded as a complete indorsement of the Reform City Government. The Breckinridge and Lane Democratic State Convention was in session at the time the Express left, being engaged in the choice of candidates for Presidential Electors. Mining news from the whole Pacific region is of the most encouraging character.

The cycle of horrors has not yet run its round. From Pittsburgh we learn of a terrible calamity which occurred in that city yesterday afternoon. A boiler in the marble works of Mr. W. W. Wallace exploded, killing ten or twelve men and wounding several others. The boiler was blown through four walls, killing several of the victims in its passage.

Another disaster is reported, resulting from the late storm. On Thursday last the schooner Neptune's Bride, belonging to Gloucester, Me., was lost on Malcolm's Ledge, between Seal Island and the Wooden Ball. In attempting to land in a boat, the Captain and eleven men were lost in the surf, and of two who remained on board, one was washed off and drowned. The schooner was a total loss.

The Coroner's Jury in the Lady Elgin disaster, which has been in session for several days at Chicago, yesterday returned their verdict. The majority of them censure the Lady Elgin for having on board too many passengers, but lay the principal blame for the disaster upon the schooner Augusta, declaring the second-mate of that vessel incompetent. Two of the jury, however, were disposed to fasten the whole censure upon the steamer, believing her to have been mismanaged in several respects. As a whole, the finding is on a par with the verdicts of Coroners' juries generally in such cases, and will give just as little satisfaction to the public.

The Committee of fifteen, appointed by authority of the Cooper Institute Union Meeting, met yesterday at the Assay Office and completed a Union electoral ticket, consisting of eighteen Douglas, ten Bell and Everett, and seven Breckinridge men. All but three names are taken from the tickets heretofore nominated, and these three represent a portion of the Breckinridge interest. It is argued from this latter curious fact that there will be trouble in procuring the entire Breckinridge indorsement of the Union ticket.

The Tammany Congressional Conventions met last evening, and nominated candidates for Congress from the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Eighth Districts; the Sixth and Seventh adjourned without making nominations. The Breckinridge Conventions nominated candidates in the Third and Seventh Districts, and the other Conventions adjourned.

The Republican County Convention met at No. 618 Broadway last evening, and nominated Wm. R. Stewart for Supervisor, and John Keyser for Register. Both nominations were made unanimous.

The British residents in the City held a meeting yesterday afternoon at Mr. Archibald's office, to hear the report of the Committee appointed to confer with Lord Renfrew. Mr. Archibald stated the substance of the letter received from the Duke of Newcastle, in reply to the offer of an address to the Prince. Such demonstrations, he said, had been offered in other places in the United States, but respectfully declined; and, while Lord Renfrew was very grateful and obliged for the tender of these civilities, he intimated distinctly his wish to accept no demonstrations which would appear invidious, and which might give offence. The arrangements of the citizens, whose invitation has been received through their Committee, were entirely satisfactory to Lord Renfrew. The Committee were, accordingly, discharged.

Mayor Wood has made a reply to the communication of the Croton Aqueduct Board, which we published yesterday, in which, though he objects to the terms of the communication as disrespectful, and denies the truth of its allegations, he consents that the necessary work may be proceeded with.

The Board of Emigrant Benevolent Societies met yesterday, and from their report it would seem that they will take steps to ascertain if the ruling of the City Judge in the case of Ward and Gilbert, ticket swindlers, be in accordance with the law. Their action in regard to this class of people has resulted in the most beneficial effects.

A shocking attempt to murder a woman was made yesterday in the First Ward. The victim, Hannah Jones, keeper of a boarding-house at No. 22½ Morris-street, had for a few weeks past been under an engagement to marry Henry N. Pierrepont, a shoemaker, living at No. 46 Greenwich-street. On Sunday night, circumstances with reference to the woman's conduct excited Pierrepont's jealousy, and yesterday he called at her house and demanded an explanation. Her reply did not satisfy him, so he drew his knife and gave her a severe wound in the arm. She took refuge in the house of a neighbor, but Pierrepont followed her and shot her in the head with a pistol. The ball entered the woman's brain, inflicting a wound which, though not instantly mortal, it is thought will result in her death. Pierrepont was secured and is now in prison.

A two mile trot took place on Monday at the Centreville Course, between Flora Temple and George M. Patchen—Flora proving the winner in two straight heats. Between two and three thousand persons were present.

The Excelsior Base Ball Club, on their return from Baltimore, played a match against a picked nine from all Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon, in presence of 1,500 spectators. The victory, as usual in all their excursion matches, was for the Excelsiors, who scored fifteen to their opponents four. The match occupied but two hours and five minutes, and the Philadelphians played well in the field—some of them being cricketers. The Excelsiors return from Philadelphia this morning.

After one disappointment the Caledonian Club succeeded in hitting on a pleasant day, and passed Monday very agreeably in a series of contests, comprising running, jumping, sack races, etc. Ten thousand visitors were on the grounds during the day.

Mons. Berger, the champion billiard-player of Europe, arrived in this City by the Adriatic, for the purpose of engaging in friendly games with our leading players, and giving public exhibitions of his great skill.

The September Term of the Court of General Sessions was concluded yesterday. It was arranged that the argument in the case of Charles Jefferds, charged with the murder of Messrs. Walton and Matthews, which was adjourned from last Thursday, owing to the absence of the District-Attorney, should be proceeded with, but that gentleman being still among the missing, nothing could be done. The only important case tried yesterday, that of George Penson, for an alleged larceny of $1,600, resulted in an acquittal, as did also the trial of Thomas McGivney for burglary. Some half-a-dozen parties were sent to the State Prison and the Penitentiary. The Grand Jury were discharged with the usual thanks of the Court for their services. Edward Falconer, arrested on Sunday for street-preaching, was brought up upon habeas corpus before Justice Ingraham at the Supreme Court, Chambers. No legal ground for his detention appearing, he was discharged.

There was an active business in Stocks yesterday, and a large advance in several of the New-York Railways,—Central closing 89⅞, and Erie 39½ ℘ cent. The Western Shares opened weak on Rock Island and Galena, but closed steady,—Rock Island 78⅞. There was general buoyancy in the dealings in the afternoon. Money reported easier among the Brokers. The Bank return shows another large reduction in Discounts of $1,200,000, and a small increase in Specie. Two additional failures are reported,—one in the fancy goods line, and the other in hats and furs. The last, like the case noticed in Saturday's report, has grown out of the embarrassments of 1857.

Heavier transactions were reported in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs. Corn closed a shade firmer. Provisions were in fair demand, as were also Cotton, Sugars and Whisky. A moderate inquiry prevailed for Oils, Rice, Tallow, Hay and Hops. Metals were quiet. The freight engagements were more satisfactory.

The Fusion Effected.

The Fusion Committee fulfilled its mission yesterday, and made up a new electoral ticket. All that this action amounts to thus far, however, is that fifteen gentlemen, all of them Anti-Republicans, and nearly all Democrats, have nominated a list of electors which they hope the three political parties will consent to vote for instead of their own. This list comprises 18 Douglas men, 10 Bell-Everett men and 7 Breckinridge men,—the Douglas men having thus a majority of one over both the others. We do not understand that thus far either of the two Democratic organizations has assented to the arrangement. The ticket is simply one that has been put in nomination by a private party of 15,—who have no hope of electing any President of their own and who concentrate their energies, therefore, on the task of defeating their principal opponent.

It will probably be several days before we shall know whether the authorized committees of the regular parties surrender to this corps of volunteers. The Bell-Everett men will of course do so, as they have had from the beginning no other wish than to fraternize with any party and anybody who would help them defeat the Republicans. The Douglas men are, to a very great degree, since the entangling alliance which they formed at Syracuse, in the power of their colleagues, and will very probably be compelled to assent to the coalition, which they can do with the better grace as they have a majority of the whole ticket. But it is not very easy to say what motive the Breckinridge men have to join this junto, unless it be that, as they have nothing to hope in any case, so they have nothing to lose in this. They profess, however, devotion to a definite political principle, and the most absolute hatred and contempt for the principle of Popular Sovereignty, which is the sole stock in trade of their proposed associates. They are in a position, certainly, to obtain credit for consistency and political principle if they deem it worth while. They will probably, however, yield to the clamor for Fusion, withdraw their ticket, and vote as they please.

We do not think the Republicans have anything to fear from the Fusion ticket. If the issue from the outset had been distinctly between Congressional prohibition of Slavery and Popular Sovereignty in the Territories, we do not feel certain that the former would have triumphed. But the issue has not been made. The opportunity for making it has been thrown away. It is not possible now to achieve any result which can be claimed as a victory for that principle. If the Fusion ticket were to be elected, half the men upon it would denounce the pretext that it was to be considered a Douglas triumph. And still less, could it be claimed by those who hold what is styled the National Democratic principle, that slave property in the Territories may claim the protection of the Federal Government. Both the Douglas and the Bell men upon the ticket would repel such an intimation with the utmost indignation.

The fact is, this fusion ticket will represent no political principle whatever. It appeals to no fixed opinions—it rests upon no settled convictions of the people concerning the management of public affairs. It aims at nothing definite in the administration of the Government. It holds out no programme—it gives no pledge, it inspires no confidence as to the course it would pursue if the responsibilities of government were devolved upon it. Whether it would extend Slavery or restrict it—whether it would permit the people of a Territory to expel it or compel them to admit it—whether it would favor the restoration of the Slave-trade or not—all these questions are left in doubt, because the electors themselves are not agreed upon any one of them. There is only one point of union among them, and that is an overmastering fear of what certain Southern States may do, if they are not allowed to dictate the election of a President and the policy of the country. Upon every other principle the new party is utterly disorganized; it does not agree with itself. It is only when you come to the question of courage, that it becomes a unit.

Now we cannot believe that such a coalition as this has any strength with the people of this State. It has no single element of popularity or success. A coalition at the best is an odious device—but when it is essential to the support of some great principle, it may be accepted as a necessity. But when it involves a surrender of all principle, and becomes merely the asylum of pusillanimity, it ceases to command respect or enlist support. The people of New-York are not political cowards. They are not afraid to avow their political sentiments nor to assert their political rights. They do not believe that the South will desire to dissolve the Union, in the event of Lincoln's election, nor that they could accomplish it if they did. They have faith that the Constitution will preserve the Union; and as they do not intend to violate the one, so they have no fears for the stability of the other.

Political Life and its Prizes—England and America.

The opportunity of rapping Republican America over the knuckles, combining with the dearth of topics which afflicts English journalism in the dry season, after Parliament has risen, tempt our cotemporary, the London Times, into a solemn sermon, of which Gov. Banks and his resignation supply the text, upon the diversion in the United States of the highest ability from the service of the State into the paths of private enterprise. The inadequacy of American salaries in the leading positions of public life is assumed by the Times to account in a very considerable degree for the unhappy results which it deplores, and the inference is left to be drawn that in America we systematically starve talent and character out of national fame into the obscurity of fortune, and fairly force genius into abdicating the laurel wreaths of history and accepting the loaves and fishes of the hour. There can be little doubt that men of the first force do not seek public posts so generally and so naturally as they once did, either in the United States or in Europe. The case of Gov. Banks, however, can scarcely be quoted in illustration of this truth without implying a rather scurvy compliment to that gentleman, who has done nothing to escape and much to deserve the honors of political life, and whose present action in leaving the Executive chair of Massachusetts for a comfortable commercial post in Illinois is not necessarily to be interpreted as a definite abandonment of a career which had reached its term in the East, and could only be prolonged by opening new channels for itself in the West.

But it is of some importance to us to know whether the cause upon which the Times lays the responsibility of a political decadence, never too much to be deplored, really merits the importance assigned to it. We are now on the eve, in this very City and State, of choosing a number of public officers, as well judicial as administrative. The salaries of these officers are confessedly very far from being absolutely magnificent, and we all of us agree that, in the case of most of them, the public service exacts for itself a degree of abnegation and simplicity in its servants, upon which it is hardly either just or wise to insist. But if we are destined to be afflicted with vulgar, or dishonest, or idle, or incompetent officials, this destiny may possibly have its roots in other than the financial difficulties and defects of our system.

It is true of all public service, and especially true of those higher ranks of the public service upon which the pecuniary parsimony of the country is alleged to exert the most deleterious influence, that men of ability, who are commonly also men of ambition, are not tempted to these walks of life by the hope of gain alone. The love of power, the pleasant sense of personal importance, the pride of place, these, with nobler instincts and loftier impulses, moving men to the great ends which always lie within the grasp of official capacity, must be relied upon far more than the emoluments of office to secure for the State the servants most likely to do her honor and profit. The "first class" of men must be thus appealed to; and it is therefore, we think, demonstrably true that the steps by which place is to be reached have far more effect in determining men of this stamp to seek or to avoid it than any considerations of pecuniary ease, or even of pecuniary comfort, attending its achievement. In England itself we have the most striking proof of this. The salaries of high office in England, though much larger than in America, are certainly not larger when compared with the average "first prizes" of professional life and the average incomes of the classes with which men of high official rank are called upon to live. An English Premier without private fortune, like the younger Pitt, or Mr. Canning, or Lord John Russell, is no better off relatively to the society in which he is to move, on his salary of £5,000, than an American Secretary of State on his salary of $6,000. Even in the City of New-York, private incomes of from $10,000 to $20,000 per annum are more rare than are private incomes of as many pounds in the Court circle of London, while if we take the United States at large as the basis of the proportion, it is beyond a doubt that the American Secretary's dollars put him far more at his ease, all things considered, among the opulent order of his countrymen, than do the English Premier's pounds. It is true that in the case of some though not of all the high officers of the English state, a system of graduated service pensions supplies an element of financial stability to the English politician's career, which is lacking on our side of the water. But this system is of such application that it did not prevent Pitt from dying more deeply in debt than Webster, or Sheridan from ending his days in greater trouble and distress than Munroe. Our public men ought to be well paid certainly, and it may perhaps be questioned whether they are, after all, very inadequately paid in a country which sees ninety-six in every hundred of its merchants die as bankrupts, and but the exceptional tens out of the crowding hundreds of its professional men, close their eyes upon a competence. England is a land of fortunes, America of incomes, and the ceaseless financial flux of our society tends to keep us all more nearly at a level than it is possible Englishmen should be. The crucial difficulty of an existing system, and the germ of its worst fruits must be looked for less in the Treasury of the State than in the apathy of the citizens. If the higher order of Americans shrink from the public service, it is not that they commonly hold their talents at a higher market rate in cash than the State will offer, but that they hold their characters too high for the preliminary condescensions of the caucus and the convention. Let honest men once undertake in earnest the "primary meeting," and we need not gravely concern ourselves about the financial demands of their nominees.

The Pope and the Bishops—A Turgid Correspondence.—The recent address of condolence of the Baltimore Bishops to the Pope, owing in some degree, no doubt, to its being indited in ecclesiastical Latin in the original is a very good specimen of the unfortunate and almost ludicrous inflation of style, by which all the addresses and documents issued by the clergy during the present troubles of the Papacy have been characterized, and which has damaged their cause almost as much as the arms of Garibaldi. The popular heart, if it were ever so sympathetic, can hardly be touched by language possessing so little of the simplicity and terseness with which political discussions are now carried on, and in which all real feeling is expressed. The ponderous periods in which the clergy discuss the woes of the church, are almost as much out of place, as strange in the ears of this generation, as the conceits and euphemisms in which lovers breathed their passion two hundred years ago. Whatever pain might be excited by seeing an old gentleman of the age and position of Pius IX. shorn of his dominions, few people are much moved, when they are asked to drop a tear over the storms which "toss the sacred bark of blessed Peter." In like manner, when the excommunication directed against Victor Emanuel, and the whole of the Italian Liberal Party—which was stuck up on the church doors in Rome last Spring, and to which no human being seems to have since paid a particle of attention is called "a drawing of the sword of the Spirit worn by divine appointment, a proof that there still remains in the Catholic Church the divine power to oblige her children to walk rightly in the Lord,"—there is such a ludicrous contrast between this description of its potency and the results it seems to the profane vulgar actually to achieve, that we are afraid the rebels will only wax the fiercer in their rebellion. This language might have been addressed to Hildebrand, but the sword, unfortunately, is plainly the sword of Pius IX.

Judicial Nominations.

The Republican Convention meets to-night for the nomination of Judges. We hope the members will take good care to give us good candidates. The public has become thoroughly disgusted and somewhat alarmed, by the class of men who have been placed in the most solemnly responsible positions known to political life,—that of administering justice to a great community. Unless we can have reform in the elections, the whole system of an elective judiciary will be swept away, or, what is more likely and very much worse, it will fall into contemptuous neglect, and our scoundrels, of every grade, will be left perfectly free to select their own Judges and regulate their own affairs in their own way.

With first-class candidates, the Republicans stand a fair chance of electing their Surrogate, City Judge, and other judicial officers. But if they permit the horde of political adventurers who will besiege the doors of the Convention to force themselves upon the Party, upon the strength of party service, they will neither deserve nor achieve success. These judicial offices are all positions of dignity and responsibility, and should be filled by men whose names will be received by the whole community as a guarantee for honorable and capable service. It is not enough to entitle a man to such a nomination, that he has figured at political Conventions, or at the head or tail of partisan committees; party service may give him a claim to such rewards as party may have to bestow; but judicial positions should never be awarded on such a basis. We need solid, substantial, well-known men, for all such places:—and if the Republicans consult their interest as well as their honor, they will give us no others.

The Prince and the Englishmen of New-York.—It is hard to say whether good sense or good nature is the most marked characteristic of Lord Renfrew's American tour. Throwing aside all affectation of dignity or reserve, and surrendering his incognito wherever he goes at the demand of the naturally curious, but not always decorous, mob, he submits to be the object of vulgar inspection, without the slightest snobbishness, and in fact as if Princes and Barons were actually the two-penny shows for which the mass of our people accept them. At Chicago, for instance, where his Lordship encountered the genuine sovereigns of the New World, notwithstanding they pressed upon and jostled him rudely, and quite dispersed his suite, we find him subsequently indulging the popular curiosity by displaying himself on the balcony of his hotel, and pacing up and down within the bars, as if he were the British Lion incarnate, caged after the fashion of Bajazet, and inevitably fated to be thus exposed and explored. Surely the credit of unlimited good temper must be assigned to the Prince, in thus elevating the attributes of the genial and kindly gentleman above the etiquette of royalty.

And for his good sense, no more apt illustration need be sought for than in the response received by the British residents of New-York. Rejecting better councils, it will be remembered the Committee of our English residents besought Lord Renfrew to receive at their hands some peculiar token of respect, independently of the more general demonstrations of our citizens. They in the first instance tendered a grand ball, which was at once declined by his Lordship, on the ground that he had already consented to accept a similar honor from other parties in the City. The Committee then urged that they might have permission to offer an address, in their national character; a petition again refused, as it might look invidious, and afford a precedent for other places.

This is the very result the Committee should have anticipated. Lord Renfrew, if, when traveling incognito, he can be said to be the guest of any public body or community, is, so long as he remains in the United States, the guest of its citizens, and it certainly would be invidious and ungracious to permit the accidental British emigrant to thrust himself at all points in the foreground, between the visitor and the people. Yet, if that error were suffered to occur at one point, it could not, without giving great offence and exciting much ill-feeling, be prevented from occurring everywhere; and thus much of the popularity which the Prince is pretty sure to earn wherever he goes in the United States would be lost through this unbecoming intrusion of his countrymen. Most wisely, therefore, has he determined while here to suffer nothing to prevent his immediate intercourse with our people—a determination enforced by his language to the New-York Committee. If we are not greatly mistaken, these gentlemen will find new reasons for respecting their future King in these early manifestations of sound judgment.

The Woman's Library.—We understand that the rooms of the Woman's Library will be opened to the public to-morrow morning, at 10 o'clock, and that they will remain open during the week for visitors and ladies who desire to become subscribers. But no books will be given out until after the formal opening of the institution to the public, which will take place on Monday evening of next week. The meeting will be one of a good deal of interest. It will probably be held in Dr. Chapin's Church, on Broadway, and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, and James T. Brady, Esq., with others, are expected to deliver addresses.

The rooms of the Library are in the University, on Washington-square.

Official advices, to-day, from Mexico, announce that Gen. Lave was about leaving Vera Cruz, with a division of troops styled the Eastern Division, to operate against Mexico. Gen. Marques had been liberated by Miramon, and given the command of a division of five thousand men. Señor Mata had not arrived in Vera Cruz.

Senator Yulee, of Florida, declares that unless Breckinridge responds to the question answered by Douglas at Norfolk, and answers it differently, he will be compelled to vote against him. Bets are now being offered here on Pennsylvania against Lincoln. Reliable letters from North Carolina and Mississippi report those States certain for Bell. Hon. Joshua Hill, who is now here, says the same of Georgia. Hon. A. J. Hamilton writes that the vote of Texas will be against Breckinridge.

Captain Meigs has no intention of resigning. It is said that he positively refuses paying Captain Benham's charges for transportation between this and New-York, while visiting first one work and then another under his charge. It is also rumored that he will refuse to turn over the public funds to Captain Benham, as directed by the Secretary of War.

A large mail was received to-day from the Pacific by the War Department.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

Washington, Monday, Sept. 24.

Capt. Magruder has, it is said, been appointed Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance and Hydrography in place of Capt. Ingraham, detached to command the steam sloop Richmond.

Mr. Glossbrenner has accepted the President's tender to become his private Secretary.

O. D. Gray has been appointed Postmaster of Bellows Falls, Vermont, vice Atkins, who has been removed for other than political cause.

The New-Orleans Picayune of Friday understands that letters of the highest authority have been received in New-Orleans from Havana, which leave no room to doubt that something serious is pending between Spain and Mexico. They assert positively that an expedition of not less than 20,000 men is actually being fitted out at Havana for Vera Cruz.

Maryland Politics.

POSITION AND OPINIONS OF HON. HENRY WINTER DAVIS.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

Baltimore, Monday, Sept. 24.

Mr. Evans, of the Patriot, who spoke lately at Jersey City, complains that he was not reported accurately in the New-York Press. The impression conveyed in those reports was, that he is a Republican. He denies this, and claims still to be an American, though he avows his intention to vote for Lincoln.

He says, moreover, that in what he said of Henry Winter Davis he did not speak with any authority, as he has not seen that gentleman since July. Mr. Davis is expected soon to address an American mass meeting, when he will probably define his position. From what I know of his opinions, I think he will regard the defeat of the Democratic Party as the result most imperatively demanded by the public welfare. To accomplish this end, he will advise all the opponents of that party in the Southern States to vote for Bell and Everett, and in the Northern States to vote for the most available candidate against Democracy and the present Administratioe; and that candidate he thinks is Lincoln. I think he will oppose the fusion of the Opposition with any Democratic faction. He claims to be an American, adhering fully and uncompromisingly to the principles of that party.

Movements of Senators Seward and Douglas.

St. Joseph, Sunday, Sept. 23.

Senator Seward arrived here last night. He was received at the dépôt by the Wide-Awakes and escorted to the Patee House, where he was called out and made a short speech. Not less than 2,000 persons were present, and listened to the speech with the closest attention. He leaves to-morrow morning for Lawrence and Leavenworth.

The Douglas Party also had a demonstration the same evening, including speeches and a torchlight procession.

Leavenworth, Monday, Sept. 24.

Gov. Seward left this afternoon for Topeka, and will speak at Lawrence on the 26th. Gen. Nye spoke to a large crowd in this city this evening. The weather was very fine.

Arrival of the Santa Fe Mail.

Independence, Mo., Monday, Sept. 24.

The Santa Fé Mail, with dates to the 10th inst., aarived this evening. They have had two copious showers of rain at Santa Fé, which have restored the spirits of the people very much.

The mail party, consisting of Mr. Denvers and assistant, who drives the mail-coach between Santa Fé and El Paso, were attacked by a band of Indians at Ojo del Muerto and barbarously murdered. The Indians destroyed the mail, tore the coach to pieces, and drove off the train. This occurred about the 1st inst.

Rodgers, who was convicted of murder, was to be hung on the 12th inst.

On the 30th of August a band of Navajos attacked a ranche near Santa Clara, killed one child and took three into captivity; this was done in daylight, and they escaped with their captives without molestation.

Don Marcus Sandoval, who resided in the County of Los Vagas, was shot dead in his house on the 36th by some unknown assassin.

It is reported that Col. Fauntleroy has employed the services of 300 Utah warriors to fight the Navajos. The Independent Volunteers campaign is progressing finely. It is anticipated that twice the number of men called will report at the rendevouz. Fifteen hundred regular troops are ordered to the Navajoe country by the 1st October, but as only six companies are mounted, it is feared they cannot do much good with well-mounted and desperate Indians.

No news from the plains of importance. The ranche where Peacock was murdered has been abandoned, and the goods for the Indians were moved to Council Grove.

The time of the departure of the mail from this place to Santa Fé has been changed from Mondays to Saturdays.

Balloon Ascension at Providence.

Boston, Monday, Sept. 24.

Dr. W. H. Helme, with Wm. Hill and Peter Dean, made a successful balloon ascension to-day from Providence, R. I., traveling to Newton, N. H., ninety miles, in 5 hours. The party landed safely during a stiff breeze, but while drawing off the gas the balloon got detached from the netting and was blown rapidly north. A damaged balloon, with no car attached, labelled Jupiter, fell at Kittery, Me., this afternoon, and was probably Dr. Helme's.

Riot at a Camp-Meeting.

Stockbridge, Mass., Monday, Sept. 24.

At a Colored Camp-Meeting in West Stockbridge, on Sunday, a terrible fight ensued between a party of Irishmen and the negroes. Clubs, stones and guns were freely used, and several were fearfully, if not fatally, injured.

Later from Honduras.

WALKER NOT YET, BUT TO BE SHOT.

New-Orleans, Monday, Sept. 24.

The schooner J. A. Taylor, from Truxillo 13th, brings 28 of Walker's men. Walker and Col. Rudler were imprisoned at Truxillo, and were to be shot the ensuing day.

Another Appalling Calamity.

EXPLOSION OF A BOILER—TEN OR TWELVE PERSONS KILLED AND A NUMBER WOUNDED—THE BOILER BLOWN THROUGH FOUR WALLS.

Pittsburgh, Monday, Sept. 24.

One of the most appalling calamities that ever occurred here took place at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The boiler in the marble works of W. W. Wallace exploded, killing several men and wounding a number of others. The number of the killed and wounded is not yet definitely ascertained.

The boiler passed through the building, reducing the back part of it to a heap of ruins. It then struck the front part of Robert Burker's clothing store, in Liberty-street, killing the proprietor, who was standing at the door. His head was taken nearly off. The boiler then passed through the rear-wall of Burker's, and into Swartz's lager-bier hall, which it nearly demolished. A man named Wilpeeper, who was in the saloon, was killed. The boiler finally landed in the Presbyterian graveyard, at the back of the lager-bier hall, having passed through four walls.

The number of men engaged in the marble-works was 100. It is supposed that from ten to twelve are killed. The following are among the killed: Robert Barker, J. K. Hamilton, William Agnew, John McCutcheon, Jas. McCutcheon, Thos. M. McArnett, Wm. Burke, James Lafferty and Wm. McMillan.

A Coroner's inquest will be held to-morrow morning.

Effects of the Late Storm.

LOSS OF THE SCHOONER NEPTUNE'S BRIDE AND THIRTEEN MEN.

Rockland, Me., Monday, Sept. 24.

The schooner Neptune's Bride, Capt. Jacob Brown, of Gloucester, returning from a successful cruise to the eastward, was caught in the storm of Thursday last at about 10 P. M., while running under foresail, and ran on Malcomb's Ledge, between Seal Island and the Wooden Ball. The Captain and eleven hands were lost in the surf, in attempting to land in a boat immediately after she struck. Two men were left aboard the vessel, which bilged in half an hour, filled and worked off into deep water. The men then took to the masts, and one was washed off and drowned early in the morning. The survivor, Jos. Marsh, of Gloucester, was taken off at 5 P. M. Friday.

It is reported here to-day that one of the twelve men capsized in the surf regained the boat, and was picked up and taken to Isle au Haut.

The Lady Elgin Disaster.

FINDING OF THE CORONER'S JURY—A DIVIDED VERDICT—BOTH VESSELS CENSURED.

Chicago, Monday, Sept. 24.

The Coroner's Jury on the Lady Elgin disaster returned their verdict to-day. They say that from the evidence before the jury, they believe the Lady Elgin was in every respect a seaworthy steamer. They find that on the night of the disaster she had on board a larger complement of passengers than is allowed by law, and that although from the evidence before the jury they believe that five or six hundred passengers would not be a dangerous load for the Lady Elgin, they censure the owners of the steamer for receiving aboard more passengers than the law permits, and say that it is a dangerous and too common practice to overload steamboats on the occasion of excursions like the present.

They find that the schooner Augusta had the proper number of officers on board, and that Capt. Mallott is a noted and experienced seaman; but they have no proof as to the general competency of the other officers. They find that the steamer and schooner had lights placed on the night of the disaster in accordance with the requirements of the law, and they consider the first cause of the collision to be the defective arrangement of the lights as appointed by law to be carried on board sailing vessels.

As a further cause of the disaster they censure the second mate of the schooner for not informing the captain of the steamer's lights when he came on deck previous to the collision. They further find that the second mate was incompetent to manage the schooner, and censure Capt. Mallott for not coming to anchor to ascertain what amount of damage was done to the steamer.

The jury are of opinion that all lake passenger boats should be built with water-tight compartments, and are confident that had this been the case with the Lady Elgin the community would have been spared the shock of this lamentable disaster.

Two of the Jury protest against the verdict, and they find that the steamer Lady Elgin was mismanaged and censurable for any insufficiency of lookouts; and from all the evidence before them, they are forced to the conviction that the steamer was inadequately supplied with boats; that those on the steamer were not of the description required by law, and that the steamer's outfit of life-preservers was faulty and defective, both as regards the kind adopted and their location on the boat. They believe that the loss of so many lives was due to a culpable disregard of the Marine Inspectors in allowing the humane and wise intent of our laws for the safety of passengers to be defeated.

The Great Fair at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Sunday, Sept. 23.

The number of entries for the great Fair, which commences on Monday, has already reached 6,000—about 1,200 more than at any previous exhibition. At the opening on Monday morning 50,000 persons will be present, and the day Lord Renfrew visits the Fair, for which occasion a special programme has been arranged, probably double that number. The hotels are already jammed and the streets crowded.

St. Louis, Monday, Sept. 24.

About twenty thousand people arrived to-day on the five principal roads. The fair opens with beautiful weather and a good attendance. The street railroads and omnibuses accommodate all visitors and do away with the promiscuous scrambling heretofore experienced.

Destructive Fire in St. Louis.

TWENTY-FIVE TENEMENTS BURNT—LOSS OF LIFE.

St. Louis, Monday, Sept. 24.

At noon, yesterday, the stable of Daniel Sullivan, on Twenty-third-street, between Carr and Washington streets, was set on fire by lighted cigars or burning matches, thrown among some loose straw. The flames spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings, consuming over twenty-five tenements, and rendering houseless three hundred people. During the excitement of the occasion, a little child was thrown from a house on to a feather bed. Other bedding was thrown on the child, which took fire, burning the child to death. Loss, $10,000.

Non-Arrival of the Anglo Saxon.

Southern Improvements.—The people of North Carolina are enjoying their first excitement over the completion of their initial public improvement. The deepening, widening, and straightening of the channel of the Deep River, projected some years ago, has at last been accomplished, and improved navigation is to be brought into use in a few days. Deep River, navigable heretofore for only about 160 miles from the seaport (Wilmington), has been so improved as to afford safe transit for barges equal in capacity to our largest canal boats, as far as Farmville, something over two hundred miles from Wilmington. By this improvement the great coal and iron beds of the Farmville region have been reached, and facilities obtained for the cheap transport of ore and coal to the seaboard. The public inauguration of the completion of this work is to take place about the first of October. So much importance is attached to it, and so much pride is felt by the people of "Old Rip Van Winkle," that the Governor and State Officers have determined to commemorate the event by a grand public festival.

IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

DETAILS OF MIRAMON'S DEFEAT.

Advance of the Liberal Army Upon the Capital.

THEIR PLANS FOR ITS CAPTURE.

CHANCES OF A DESPERATE BATTLE.

Probable Course of the Foreign Ministers.

INTERFERENCE AND DESIGNS OF SPAIN.

Forced Contributions from Wealthy Mexicans.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CITY OF MEXICO, Tuesday, Aug. 14, 1860.

To-day I am happy to be able to inform you that the Liberals have completely beaten MIRAMON near Silao.

In my last I mentioned that MIRAMON remained at Lagos, waiting for resources. Seeing that these did not arrive as quick as he expected, he returned with his division to Guanajuato, where he extorted some $40,000 to $50,000. With this money he returned immediately to Lagos, in which neighborhood the forces of GONZALEZ ORTEGA—about 4,000 men—had appeared. MIRAMON thought he would be able to beat this force before it was united with the other forces from Guadalajara, but ORTEGA was prudent enough to fall back, and not risk a battle prematurely.

In the meantime, a brigade under the command of ZARAGOZA, about 3,000 strong, joined the forces of ORTEGA, and they commenced to take the offensive. MIRAMON, who had only 2,500 men, did not dare to accept the battle, and retreated to Silao, giving, at the same time, orders to ALFARO, who had been stationed near Guanajuato with 2,000 men, to join him at Silao immediately.

The same orders he also gave to CASTILLO, who was in command of Guadalajara; but the latter, after setting out, was obliged to retreat again to that city, because OGAZON, with superior forces, intercepted the road.

The forces of MIRAMON and ALFARO joined, near Silao, on the 8th inst., and he had now 4,500 men and 25 pieces of artillery, and occupied a good position, where he awaited the attack of the Liberals.

In the meantime, the forces of ORTEGA and ZARAGOZA, together with those of DOBLADO and BERRIOZABAL, numbering altogether over 8,000 men, with 40 pieces of good artillery, reached the place of battle on the 9th inst.

The attack commenced on the 10th, at 6 o'clock in the morning; the Liberals were repulsed four times, but the fifth time they attacked in eight columns, and took the fortifications of MIRAMON by assault. The losses on both sides were very great. Gen. PACHECO and many officers of MIRAMON were killed, and the Liberals took some 2,000 prisoners, all the artillery and baggage, about $50,000 in money, and in fact the Conservatives saved not the least thing. MIRAMON himself, with four Aids-de-Camp, escaped with difficulty, and arrived in this city, after a continued flight, on the 12th inst., at 12 o'clock at night.

The official papers of the capital acknowledge the defeat in general terms, but have not yet published the official reports. The Liberals occupied Guanajuato the same day and intend to march at once on the city. The Government here has given orders to all its forces at the neighboring points to concentrate here, and, according to all probabilities the city will soon be declared in a state of siege, and the final act of this long drama will be here played out. I have good hope that the Liberals will be luckier this time than last year; they can now concentrate nearly 15,000 men, with 70 to 80 pieces of good artillery, and they have better Generals than they had before.

I informed you in a former letter that ZULOAGA went with MIRAMON to the interior as prisoner; but at the commencement of this month he suddenly disappeared. MIRAMON says he escaped, but the general opinion is that he has been put out of the way by some foul means. The fact is nothing has been heard or seen of him since he disappeared.

By this occurrence the Presidential chair, (if we can so dignify the farce of a Government kept up by the Church Party,) becomes vacant, as MIRAMON was only a substitute, and on the issuance of the decree by ZULOAGA resuming the Presidency himself, the foreign Ministers, as you are already informed, refused any longer to recognize MIRAMON.

To get over the difficulty thus presented, Mr. PACHECO, the Spanish Minister, invented the following plan. Immediately after his arrival MIRAMON published a manifesto, dated from Silao, in which he says, that although the Council of State is of the opinion that he is the legitimate President, his delicacy don't permit him to accept this title without the sanction of the public vote, and he therefore resigns the power into the hands of Mr. PAVON, the President of the Supreme Court. But the Minister of Foreign Relations, to whom this manifesto is addressed, publishes at the same time a decree given by ZULOAGA in January, 1859, according to which, in case of vacancy in the office of President, the President of the Supreme Court is obliged to call together the "Council of Notables," which is composed of one representative for each State, named by ZULOAGA himself two years ago, (not elected by the people, nor even residents of the States they pretend to represent) which council, or "Junta," has to proceed immediately to the election, or rather selection, of a new President.

We don't yet know the result of the action of this easily managed and totally unauthorized body, but it is not doubted that MIRAMON will be selected—it is only a question of expediency for the Church, who manage all the wires now. If they say so it can be some one else as easy as MIRAMON; the people have nothing to do with it.

The object of all this farce is to oblige the Foreign Ministers to recognise a Government in the Capital, or to induce them to do it.

I have no doubt that PACHECO will at once recognise whoever may be put up by this "Junta," and it is a great object to him to have MIRAMON selected, for it is only by sustaining him, or some one that will pursue the same policy with Spain, that he can make effective the Almonte Treaty which was, some months since, negotiated and ratified between his Government on the one part, and the Church Government of Mexico on the other. Spain gains great advantages by this Treaty, as well as a direct interference in the affairs of Mexico, and it is to sustain this foothold that she has sent so able a man as Mr. PACHECO, and is now so effectively intervening in favor of the Church and against the Liberals, and in her opposition to the latter even threatens to bombard Vera Cruz. It is very questionable, however, whether the other Foreign Ministers will follow the example of Mr. PACHECO—for in doing it they would have to back down from the position they assumed a little while ago, that there was no legitimate Government in the Capital.

The contributions imposed by this self-styled Government increase so much that even their own friends refuse to pay them, and the Government is obliged to seize goods or furniture for the amount of the contribution.

Unfortunately for them they find nobody who will buy these goods, and the Custom-house is thus full of embargoed goods, without the Government being able to realize anything upon them.

In consequence of this the Government has given orders that cash only should be embargoed upon, and that it should be taken by force if it was not handed over willingly. The first one upon whom they tried this new plan was their friend Mr. JECKER, who has ruined himself in their cause, and who has literally fed them for more than a year past, up to the time of his failure. But these robbers don't know what gratitude is, so they put him down for $13,000 for his share of the new contribution.

The collector went to collect it in cash! Mr. JECKER demonstrated to him the impossibility of paying such a sum under his present circumstances, when his affairs were being liquidated for the benefit of his creditors, but offered to deduct twice the sum from the amounts the Government owes him, and at last even proposed to give $4,000 in cash and the balance in Government receipts, but they would not listen to it, and demanded the whole sum in hard dollars.

Mr. JECKER refused to pay it, and the Collector went away for assistance so as to take the money by force, but when he returned with a company of soldiers he found the doors of the house closed and strongly barred, and it being already 7 o'clock at night Mr. JECKER refused to open them, telling them to return in the morning. So a guard was stationed before the house all night, and the moment the doors were opened the following morning they rushed in and broke open the doors of the office and sent for a locksmith to open the chests, but after doing this they found for their pains only about one hundred false dollars.

Mr. JECKER and all his clerks had worked all night to carry about $300,000 which was in the chests, and belonged to his estate, over the roof of the house into some of the adjoining buildings, and so to a place of security. So the Church authorities made nothing out of this attempt.

The next person with whom they tried the experiment was Mr. LIZARDI, the Contractor of the Mint, and an American citizen by naturalization. They broke open the doors of his building, but Mr. LIZARDI had taken the same precaution to carry off his money to a place of concealment, and so they found nothing.

We will see what their next proceedings will be; probably they will put people in prison and starve them until they pay the money.

Affairs at Vera Cruz appear to be assuming a grave complexion. The Spaniards seem determined to have a quarrel, and from one moment to another a fleet is expected there, which is to bombard the city and take it, and then hand it over to the Church Party.

What will the United States do in this case? Everybody is asking this question, but it is very difficult to answer it. I hope Mr. BUCHANAN will have pluck enough to interfere openly against such proceedings.

P. S.—AUG. 15.—Miramon was last evening elected President, and will take the oath this morning.

Oajaca has been taken by the Liberals, and COBOS, who escaped with 200 men, is expected here. ***

CITY OF MEXICO, Tuesday, Aug. 28, 1860.

I wrote you last on the 14th instant, giving the particulars of the disastrous defeat of MIRAMON, near Silao. By this mail I thought I should be able to communicate further important intelligence, but everything moves so slow here that what takes elsewhere but a day here requires a fortnight.

The forces of the Liberals have advanced to Queretaro, which place they occupied some days since, and their vanguard is stationed near Arragozarco, but the bulk of the army and artillery is yet at Queretaro. I believe the reason of this delay is to see what movement will be made by CASTILLO from Guadalajara, and to avoid the danger of being caught between two fires in case CASTILLO should hasten to the assistance of MIRAMON in the Capital. The news which was received here last night confirms me in my impression, for, according to some private intelligence, it seems certain that CASTILLO left Guadalajara on the 21st inst., with some 4,000 to 5,000 men and all the artillery he could gather, but it is not known which route he took. It is very probable he will come by way of Morelia, which place has an insignificant garrison, and thus avoid meeting the army of ORTEGA, which he would be obliged to meet if he came by way of Guanajuato.

The question now is whether the Liberals will advance on this city and attack it before the brigade of CASTILLO can arrive, or meet the latter by marching through Colaza and Salvatierra to Morelia, which place can be reached in a few days from Queretaro. Both plans have their inconveniencies; if they attack this place and don't take it at once, they expose themselves to be taken between two fires; if they march against CASTILLO they give MIRAMON time to organize his forces and fortify the city; but the last plan is yet the best and the safest.

Gen. URAGA, who escaped a little time since from Guadalajara, will now again be the General-in-Chief, and he is an experienced soldier, who knows better what to do under such circumstances than the civilians who have commanded before, and we can look with more confidence for a favorable result.

MIRAMON is in the meantime actively engaged in collecting as many troops as possible. Every place which they occupied has been abandoned, and its garrison ordered to Mexico. ROBLES, with his brigade, is expected here at the commencement of next week, and at the same time will arrive the corps of NEGRETE, from Orizaba. With all these troops, including those of CASTILLO, MIRAMON will be able to concentrate here about 9,000 men, with a good train of artillery; but he is obliged to abandon every place in the whole Republic, except the capital. The Liberals have already occupied Jalapa, Cordova and Orizaba, and will take Puebla the moment ROBLES leaves that place. Since the defeat of COBOS, the force the Liberals had in that State has been ordered to join the other forces in this valley, and several mortars have been forwarded from Vera Cruz, with the corresponding ammunition, so as to bombard this place in case of resistance.

The fortifications of this city advance rapidly, every laboring man being seized and compelled to work on them. Yesterday they commenced the second line of fortifications, which will be situated nearly in the centre of the city, and we will have lively times during the siege, should it last long. Everybody is buying provisions, which are already enormously dear, and all business operations are entirely suspendnd. We have no communication with Puebla, the road or causeway across the valley having been destroyed by the Liberals, so that no stages can leave this city, and only the expresses of foreign Ministers are permitted to pass. So you see we are already quite shut in.

Gen. MARQUEZ, who has been kept a prisoner by MIRAMON for so many months past, has been set at liberty, and will be the commanding General of the first line of fortifications.

Some conservators say that he will leave this city next week with 7,000 men and march to attack the Liberals, but I doubt if MIRAMON will trust him to leave the city or out of his sight.

*   *   *   *   *

I advised you in my last that MIRAMON had been elected, or selected, President by the "Junta de Notables," and in consequence the Spanish Minister, Mr. Pacheco, presented on the 22d inst. his credentials, recognizing officially Miramon's government, which he himself had been mainly instrumental in setting up.

His discourse and MIRAMON's reply, both of which you find inclosed, have a good deal of significance under the present circumstances.

Spain, evidently, will do everything in her power to sustain MIRAMON, and thus secure the permanent control in Mexican affairs which is given her by the Almonte Treaty.

But as the events of the past two years have more than demonstrated that the time for maintaining a Clerico-Military Dictatorship in Mexico has forever passed, and that the people will never submit to any Government but a Constitutional Federation of their own election; it is a hopeless and unprofitable task that Spain has entered upon, as well as one that can result in only increased evil to Mexico, prolonging indefinitely the present civil war, and thus injuring and paralyzing the commerce of foreign nations and rendering the condition of Mexico still more disadvantageous for the payment of her foreign debt. If the principle of satisfied nationalities is applicable to Italy, why is it not also to Mexico? And when, after more than two years of superhuman efforts on the part of the Church and a portion of the army, sustained by the treasure that has been accumulated through centuries, and still further sums of vast amount extorted under every circumstance of outrage from both native and foreign houses, the so-called Government of the Church is reduced to the possession of one single city of 200,000 inhabitants in all the Republic, out of a population of over 8,000,000, it surely is not the time to assert that this is the legitimate Government of Mexico, or to propose a mediation which shall set aside the legally adopted constitution of the country, and admit claims which have their only foundation in a military revolt, instigated through the intrigues and the money of the Church in order to perpetuate its power.

Is the Church in Mexico any more justly entitled to the control of affairs of State than in Italy?

But I am digressing, as well as presuming, in imagining for a moment that the people of the United States can have the same sympathy for the cause of liberty and emancipation from ecclesiastical supremacy in Mexico, that they have for the same cause, under precisely similar circumstances, in Italy.

Mexico is too near home; besides it is not classical.

To return to my text. The other foreign Ministers have been invited to follow the example of Senor PACHECO, but they have not yet come to a resolution regarding their future course, probably awaiting further instructions from their respective Governments.

The general opinion is, that the plan of Mr. PACHECO will be to offer to the commanding Generals of the Liberal forces, as soon as they arrive before this city, the mediation of the European Powers, the same as proposed by that reputable diplomat, M. GABRIAC, the French Minister, some months ago, before he was called home.

The basis of this mediation does not include civil and religious liberty, as under the English propositions, and it is, consequently, probable that the Spanish Minister will have no difficulty in getting MIRAMON's assent to such mediation or intervention beforehand. In fact, he is doubtless acting upon such an understanding already.

Should the Liberals refuse his offer, (as, of course they must do, as they have neither the right nor the disposition in any manner to set aside the Constitution of the country which secures both these invaluable rights, and particularly in this final moment of almost complete triumph,) then he intends to take openly the part of MIRAMON, and instruct the commanding officer of the Spanish naval forces before Vera Cruz to bombard that place; taking as a pretext, the refusal of the Constitutional authorities there to deliver up the bark Concepcion, which has been declared by the courts of Vera Cruz a legal prize. I give you this information as I hear it in very reliable quarters, and I have no doubt of its entire correctness.

The principal drawback of the Government here is their absolute want of resources, and I was not mistaken in my last, in predicting that their next step would be to put people in prison, and in this way extort money from them.

Last week MIRAMON wrote a very polite note to Messrs. MIER Y TERAN, PACHECO, (not the Minister, but a wealthy Mexican,) ESCANDON, ROSAS and GORIBAR, who rank among our wealthiest capitalists, inviting them to come to the palace. When they reached the palace, Mr. DIAZ, the Minister of Justice, came forward and told them in a very few words that His Excellency, Senor MIRAMON, wanted $10,000 of each of them, and that they would not be permitted to leave the palace before it was paid. You may imagine how agreeably surprised these gentlemen were, and how amiable must have been their feelings. The first three being of a timid character, gave their checks for the required sum, and were dismissed, but ROSAS and GORIBAR, both of whom are worth at least a million of dollars, openly refused to submit to such treatment, and preferred to remain as prisoners rather than pay the required sum.

MIRAMON kept them for three days in a decent prison, hoping that it would be sufficient to persuade them to fork over the money; but seeing that it had no effect on them, he sent them to the common city prison, where they had the agreeable company of all the robbers and drunkards of this virtuous city, giving at the same time instructions to LAGARDE, the Chief of Police, to put them in the ranks as common soldiers if they did not pay the $10,000 apiece required of them within twenty-four hours. But these gentlemen remained firm in their resolution, and everything was prepared to place them at work outside on the fortification, when Mr. PACHECO, the Spanish Minister, interfered, (probably becoming alarmed for the reputation of the Government he had set up,) telling MIRAMON some plain truths, which it seems have not been considered very complimentary to his Government, and the two gentlemen have been placed at liberty after four day's imprisonment, but without paying one cent.

Seeing that he could not raise money by imprisoning rich people, MIRAMON has turned his eye again to the Clergy, who have furnished him so much money during the last two years, but they have now no money and no credit, so their only way to raise money has been to melt up and coin all the Church silver, as ornaments, candle-sticks, &c., and to pawn their jewels.

I inclose you the decree issued in conformity with this arrangement. It is really a curious document.

This measure will give MIRAMON about half a million of dollars which will last perhaps a month.

Where his next supply is to come from it is hard to tell; perhaps Spain will furnish him funds. If so, it would be only fair for the United States to furnish an equal amount to the Constitutional authorities. The next four weeks will determine whether it will be required. ***

SPORTING AFFAIRS.

Two-Mile Trot between Flora Temple and George M. Patchen.

FLORA AGAIN THE WINNER—TIME, FIRST HEAT, 4:55¼; SECOND HEAT, 5 MINUTES.

After a season of comparative quiet in turf affairs, during which Patchen has been in retirement, Flora on a Western trip to the scene of her great heat of 2:19¾, Ethan Allen rusticating and lionizing at the various County and State Fairs, and the numerous good steeds that travel on their looks and speed have been following in the lead of Ethan, the Fall season was yesterday fitly inaugurated by a most excellent trot between the two celebrities mentioned above. Though the time is not remarkable, yet considering the adverse circumstances it is undoubtedly good, and the slight difference between the horses at the ending of both heats made the race one of great interest. The arrangements by which the track was kept clear, and the exceedingly fine condition in which it was were very commendable. There were over twenty-five hundred persons present. Flora was at Kalamazoo little more than a week ago, but as soon as the match was made she started for this City, arriving on Friday, which gave her little time to prepare for the contest, but as Patchen was ailing during last week, the match was reduced more to an equality, or rather turned the other way, as Flora became the favorite at one hundred to sixty. Even at these odds few bets were made till the day of the race, when Patchen making a fine show before scoring, a large amount of money was staked at the above odds, while some enthusiastic backers of the mare even gave one hundred to fifty, the result justifying their confidence. At the sound of the bell the horses came up for the FIRST HEAT.—Patchen had the pole, and after two attempts a very fair start was made, Patchen being a head in advance, and as he swung round the turn Flora fell off and Patchen led two lengths at the second turn, which he increased to three as they approached the quarter, from whence to the half there was no perceptible change of position. Here, however, Flora led out a littl and gained a length as they went round the upper turn and past the three-quarter pole. As they swung into the homestretch she was still closer to him, and down the straight run and past the stand they came, Flora lapped on Patchen's off wheel, the mile being made in 2 min. 23 sec., the half having been done in 1 minute 11 seconds. As they began the turn, Patchen drew away half a length, but fell off from his gait, and Flora crept up and gave him the "go by" shortly after passing the quarter pole. At the half, Flora was two lengths clear, maintaining the advantage round the upper turn, where Patchen began to gain, but went up at the three-quarters losing half a length. From this place the horse made a determined push for the lead, and reduced the gap to a length and a half, Flora keeping him at this distance in spite of all his exertions, and coming over the score the winner of the heat in 4 minutes 55¼ seconds.

SECOND HEAT.—No delay was caused in this heat by any false starts, the word "Go" being given the first time they came up to the score, Patchen on the outside, having his nose in advance, but skipping at the turn, he dropped back a little, but began almost immediately to gain on his little antagonist. Some very pretty trotting took place between them, as he gained inch by inch, his black nose again showing in front as they neared the half-mile pole, which he passed in 1:12, with a clear lead of a length. They went thus around the three-quarter turn, swinging into the home stretch, and rushing towards the score, with Patchen still leading a length and a half, and as they neared the starting point, Flora went up doubling the gap, Patchen crossing the score in 2:26. As they entered the second mile, both broke slightly, Flora settling down soonest, and taking the lead and track, which she maintained, passing the quarterpole a length and a half ahead, increasing it by a break of Patchen to three at the half. Thence to the upper turn Patchen increased his speed, lessening the gap between him and Flora, and, as they entered the last turn, made play for the lead, the mare breaking badly, but recovering soon. As they came down the home stretch Patchen had the lead and the track, TALLMAN touching him up with the whip and urging him on, but to no purpose, as Flora had a little more speed to spare, and outfooted her gallant competitor, coming over the score a length in advance, the heat being trotted in exactly five minute.

The Billiard World.

ARRIVAL OF MONS. BREGER, THE CHAMPION BILLIARD PLAYER OF EUROPE.

It will be remembered that about a year ago some excitement was created in the billiard circles of the Metropolis by the announcement of a prospective match between the respective champions of Europe and America. Owing to more profitable engagements of Mr. BERGER, the proposed match could not be brought about, but he then expressed his intention to visit this country at some future time. Those who take their cue from Mr. PHELAN were delighted a few weeks ago by the announcement of a letter from the French Champion fixing his arrival for next month, and now he has surprised most agreeably the followers of "ye champions" by a sudden irruption in their midst—he having arrived in the steamer Adriatic on Monday.

It may be interesting to state that Monsieur BERGER is the best player in France; has been unconquered by any one for ten years, during which time he has been visited by numbers of celebrities from the other countries of Europe. England is the only country with which he has had no contest of skill. American travelers will most probably remember his billiard gallery in the "Galerie Montpensier," Palais Royal, a favorite resort for Americans visiting Paris. After his numerous victories in Europe he has come hither to have friendly games with the best players, and also give a series of exhibitions. During his stay in the City he will be the guest of Mr. MICHAEL PHELAN, the renowned player of this city.

Scottish Games.

FOURTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION.

The fourth annual festival of the New-York Caledonian Club was celebrated at Jones's Wood yesterday.

During the day six or seven thousand spectators were present, and among them were many ladies, who were all delighted to witness the manly dexterity with which the different contestants strove for the victory in their favorite national pastimes.

The programme opened with one of those good old-fashioned Scotch Reels, to the inspiring tones of the bag-pipes, in the hands of the pipers to the Club, Messrs. BOWMAN and CLELAND, after which the arena was cleared, and the games commenced, and resulted as follows:

FEVER AND AGUE IS A TERRIBLE DISEASE.—Of "all the ills that flesh is heir to," it is the faintest in its first manifestations, the most unrelenting in its progress, and the most defiant of medical skill. Fever and ague is more destructive of life than consumption, because it is more easily induced, and therefore more prevalent. It marks its victims for the grave like an executioner's bond. Day by day the sufferer grows weaker and weaker, and each hour does he fear a strong consciousness of approaching the tomb. We have said that the disease is one of those which has nearly always defied medical science—a few cases once in a while having been cured and reported. We recommend Dr. J. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS to suffering humanity generally, as a sure and speedy specific.
For sale by druggists and dealers generally everywhere.

A STRONG BEARD HAS SAVED MANY a man from Consumption, by protecting the throat. Now some persons have no beard or moustache; to all such I say, use my Onguent, (established 1852,) which will force the beard to grow on the beardless face in a few weeks, without stain or injury to the skin. Price $1. Sold by dealers generally.

HENRY H. LEEDS & Co., Auctioneers.

SPLENDID BUILDING SITES FOR FIRST-CLASS COUNTRY SEATS AT NEWBURGH.—Supreme Court sale in partition.—HENRY H. LEEDS & CO. will sell by auction, on the premises at Newburgh, on WEDNESDAY, Oct. 3, at 12 o'clock noon, by order of the Supreme Court in partition, without any reserve eight splendid building sites for first-class country seats, belonging to the estate of William Thayer, deceased, without reserve. S. W. Fullerton, Jr., Esq., Referee. The property is situated two miles north of the Village of Newburgh, on the bank of the Hudson River, and each parcel commanding a splendid view of the river and surrounding country for more than thirty miles. There are two lots of 13 acres each, two lots of 8 acres each, one of 2½ acres, one of 7 acres, one of 10 acres and one of 17 acres, comprising river, mountain and inland scenery. The view is said by competent judges to surpass anything on the Hudson River. The lot of seven acres contains a vineyard of about 1,000 Catawba and Isabella grapevines in full bearing. The ten acre lot has a stone farm house and barns, and a large orchard. The seventeen-acre lot has a never failing stream of water through the centre. The premises are surrounded by the splendid country seats of Warren Delano, Jr., J. Burton, G. A. Elliott, Mrs. Waddell, Mrs. Page, W. H. Edwards, F. Deming and others. As the view is superior to any on the river, in a first-class neighborhood, easy of access, and the land in the vicinity yearly increasing in value, an opportunity is offered to persons seeking a fine location for a country seat on the Hudson River which may never again occur with equal inducements. Title perfect. Terms: Three-quarters of the purchase money can remain on bond and mortgage for five years, 10 per cent. on the day of sale, and the balance on the 1st November, when the deeds will be delivered. Maps of the property can be obtained from the Auctioneer, or of John S. Thayer, Esq., at Newburgh. Trains leave Chambers-st. every day at 7 o'clock, and stop at Fishkill opposite. Steamer leaves foot of Jay-st. at 7 o'clock each day, and the Alida at 8½ o'clock, arriving in time for the sale. Can return by steamer or railroad at almost any hour after the sale. OHIO STATE LOAN—$6,400,000.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE SINKING FUND OF THE STATE OF OHIO,
COLUMBUS, 28th August, 1860.

THE STATE OF OHIO DESIRES TO BORROW THE SUM OF SIX MILLIONS AND FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS, to be applied exclusively to the payment of that portion of the public debt redeemable at its pleasure after the 31st day of December next; and to that end the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the State, under authority of an act of its General Assembly, will receive sealed proposals at the Ohio State Agency, No. 25 William-st., New-York City, until 12 o'clock M. of the TWENTIETH DAY OF NOVEMBER NEXT, for the purchase of SIX MILLIONS AND FOUR HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS of the Transferable Certificates of the Funded and Registered Debt of the State of Ohio, bearing interest from the 1st day of January, 1861, to be paid semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year, at the Ohio State Agency in the City of New-York, with the principal reimbursable at the same place; and which, as to the rate per cent. of interest and the time of final redemption, shall be in accordance with such of the three conditions following as, on the opening of the proposals, the Commissioners may deem to be most advantageous to the State—that is to say:

1. Bearing interest at the rate of FIVE per cent. per annum, and redeemable at the pleasure of the State after the THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF DECEMBER, 1890.

2. Bearing interest at the rate of SIX per cent. per annum, and redeemable at the pleasure of the State after the THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF DECEMBER, 1870.

3. Bearing interest at the rate of SIX per cent. per annum, and redeemable at the pleasure of the State after the THIRTY-FIRST DAY OF DECEMBER, 1880.

Each proposal must state distinctly for which of these classes of certificates it is made, the amount of either which is desired, and the price for each one hundred dollars of each class proposed to be taken, and must be accompanied by a certified check on, or certificate of deposit of one of the banks of New-York City, payable to the order of the Commissioners, for a sum equal to five per cent. of the amount of certificates bid for, which sum shall be forfeited if the bidder shall fail, in case any of the certificates are awarded to him, to pay the residue of his bid at the time hereinafter specified for that purpose. No bid at less than the par value of the certificates, or for an amount less than five thousand dollars, will be considered, and each bid shall be deemed as made either for the whole sum named therein, or for such pro rata amount thereof, as, at the rate specified, may be assignable to the bidder, regard being had to the other proposals.

Interest on the deposit, at the rate for which the certificates are awarded to him, will be allowed to each successful bidder, and adjusted on the delivery of the certificates, and each will be required to pay the residue of the amount bid by him on the 29th day of December, 1860, at the Ohio State Agency, in the City of New-York, at which time and place the certificates awarded will be ready for delivery. Certificates of the Funded Debt of the State of Ohio, redeemable on the 1st day of January, 1861, will be received in payment of any part of the loan hereby contemplated.

The deposits of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned to them upon application at the Ohio State Agency on the day next subsequent to the opening of the proposals.

The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all of the bids if they shall deem it necessary in order to protect or promote the interests of the State.

Proposals for this loan must be inclosed in a sealed envelope, directed to the "Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the State of Ohio," and indorsed "Proposals for the Ohio Loan."

In order to secure uniformity, and for the convenience of bidders, the Commissioners have prepared a form of proposal, which, together with a copy of the act authorizing the loan, and any information desired in the premises, may be obtained at the Ohio State Agency in New-York City, or at the office of the Commissioners in Columbus, Ohio.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positive invigorant of the human system is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact when its virtues become fully known it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary, allaying all over-excitement, and infusing into the nervous organization that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetizer it is equally remarkable; assimilated with the gastric juices of the stomach, it assists them in more readily dissolving all nutritious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; thus the digestion is improved, and the whole framework of man moves on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner thereby. Price $3 per bottle, or two bottles for $5. Principal office No. 203 Fulton-st., New-York.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

FUSION FINALLY FINISHED.

Nomination of a Union Electoral Ticket—Eighteen Douglas, Ten Bell and Everett, and Seven Breckinridge Electors Chosen.

The Special Committee of fifteen, appointed in pursuance of the resolutions of the Union Mass Meeting held at Cooper Institute, on the 17th inst., to "adopt such an electoral ticket for this State as the crisis and the country demand," met at the Assay Office, Wall-street, yesterday noon. The following gentlemen were present: Chas. O'Conor, Samuel J. Butterworth, Edwin Croswell, Henry Grinnell, S. L. M. Barlow, Wilson G. Hunt, Samuel J. Tilden, Peter B. Sweeney, Daniel F. Tiemann, James Monroe, Daniel Devlin, Andrew Mount, Chas. A. Secor, Joshua J. Henry, Chairman; Jehial Read, Secretary.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this Committee recommend to all citizens of the State of New-York, who are opposed to the election of LINCOLN and HAMLIN, and who are in favor of preserving the Union of these States upon the basis of the Constitution, the following ticket for electors of President and Vice-President of the United States.

Subjoined is the list, politically classified. Those whose names appear on the Douglas and Bell Electoral Ticket are designated D. for DOUGLAS, and B. and E. for BELL and EVERETT. Those who appear on the Breckinridge Electoral Ticket are designated B. It will be observed that three names—Messrs. KOBBE, DUNCAN and CONGER—do not appear on either of the tickets heretofore in the field. This, it is said, is because three more men on the Breckinridge ticket, willing to serve, could not be found, owing to the obstinate opposition of JOHN A. GREEN's faction, and these three are put in to fill up the Breckinridge interest. The following is the Union Electoral Ticket recommended by the Committee:

FOR ELECTORS AT LARGE.
HEMAN J. REDFIELD, D.
HENRY S. RANDALL, B.

FOR DISTRICT ELECTORS.

18	CHARLES GOODYEAR, D.,

Douglas Electors	18
Bell and Everett Electors	10
Breckinridge Electors	7

This ticket was made up by taking the Douglas and Bell Union ticket as groundwork. Mr. Kobbe fills the place of Mr. Ottendoffer; Messrs. Charles H. Collins, F. R. Tillou, J. H. Robinson, J. Anderson, Edward Haight and R. H. Walworth resigned. Their places were then filled by Messrs. Brower, Westervelt and Russell, from the Breckinridge ticket, and Messrs. Duncan and Conger, who are believed to be in the Breckinridge interest.

So far as the Douglas and Bell-Everett, and a portion of the Breckinridge men are concerned, the ticket therefore stands as their choice. But it yet to be seen whether the entire Breckinridge interest will come in, and whether the names of the thirty-two Breckinridge electors, not noticed on the fusion ticket, will be withdrawn.

Tammany Congressional Nominations.

In obedience to the summons of the Democratic Republican General Committee, (Tammany Hall,) the several Congressional Conventions met last evening and proceeded to nominate candidates for Congress, with the following results:

THIRD DISTRICT—RICHARD T. COMPTON.

The Breckinridge Democrats were present in pretty strong force, and sent a Committee offering to hold a parley with Tammany, but they could not come to any understanding. Just as the nomination of Mr. COMPTON had been announced, the door of the Committee-room yielded to the outside pressure, and the irruption of the "Custom-house delegation" put an end to further proceedings of the Tammany Committee. The Breckinridge wing then nominated JOHN C. MATHER. There was some excitement, but no serious disturbance.

FOURTH DISTRICT—MICHAEL TUOMY, Alderman of the Fourteenth Ward, was nominated without opposition.

FIFTH DISTRICT—Adjourned to Thursday evening.

In the Seventh District ELIJAH WARD was nominated.

EIGHTH DISTRICT—Adjourned to Wednesday evening.

The remainder of the Conventions adjourned without nominating.

Republican County Convention.

W. R. STEWART NOMINATED FOR SUPERVISOR, AND JUDGE KEYSER FOR REGISTER.

The Republican County Convention, comprising five delegates from each Ward, met at No. 618 Broadway last evening. AMOR J. WILLIAMSON, Esq., presided, and Messrs. THAYER, of the Ninth Ward, and CLEVELAND, of the Fifteenth, were chosen Secretaries. The only contested seats were those representing the Twentieth and Eleventh Wards. From the Twentieth Ward there were two delegations, one headed by D. D. CONOVER, and another by P. C. BULKLEY, each representing a rival association—the latter an offshoot from the former.

Mr. BULKLEY addressed the Convention, claiming that the Club of which Mr. CONOVER was the representative, was composed of many Democrats, and was conducted so illegally that the separation was a necessity.

Mr. CONOVER replied that Mr. BULKLEY's association had been formed but about a week, and that his was the only one legally constituted in the Ward to elect delegates.

The Convention admitted Mr. CONOVER's delegation by a vote of 65 to 29.

Messrs. THOMAS DOYLE and Mr. WEMMELL were heard on behalf of the claims of their respective delegations to represent the Eleventh Ward.

During the taking of the vote considerable consternation was created by the discovery that an individual had been voting surreptitiously half a dozen times for absent parties. On motion he was ordered to leave the room, and during the putting of the question he left under escort of the Sergeant-at-Arms. It was simultaneously discovered that he was not a delegate. The roll was called a second time, and the Doyle delegation admitted by a vote of 58 to 45. Mr. WEMMELL, when about to leave, thanked the Convention for fair play, and said he would go out, as he hoped DOUGLAS would in November. [Applause.]

Upon motion, the Convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for Supervisor.

WM. R. STEWART, the present President of the Board, and Mr. JAMES CUTHELL, an attaché of the Tribune office, were the principal candidates. Mr. W. R. STEWART was nominated by a vote of 86 to 23 for Mr. CUTHELL, and 1 for Mr. O'BRIEN. The nomination of Mr. STEWART was then made unanimous.

The Convention then proceeded to the nomination of a candidate for Register.

Messrs. MERWIN R. BREWER, DAVID MILLER, JOHN KEYSER, WM. H. ALBERTSON and PORTER G. SHERMAN, being put in nomination. The Convention decided that a majority of all the delegates were necessary to nominate a candidate.

After the claims of the various candidates had been advocated by their friends, the vote was taken by ballot, with the following result:

John Keyser	57	Porter G. Sherman	4
Merwin R. Brewer	35	W. H. Albertson	4
David Miller	10

After cheers for everybody and everything Republican, the Convention adjourned sine die.

Mass Meeting of German Republicans.

A large and very enthusiastic mass meeting of German Republicans of the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth Wards, and the Campaign Clubs of these Wards took place last evening at No. 333 Hudson-street. The Clubs had assembled at their head-quarters, and thence proceeded to the meeting room. There were about 800 to 900 persons in the room. The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Sigismund Kaufmann, Friederick Kapp, L. Tochimer and William Kapp, one of the Editors of the New-Yorker Demokrat. The speakers explained the various questions now pending, as slavery, the Homestead bill, and the benefits of a high tariff. The meeting was adjourned at a late hour.

The City Wide-Awakes.

A large mass meeting was held at the hall of the City Wide-Awakes, No. 638 Broadway, last evening. The "Prairie Songsters," during the evening, sang several songs. Messrs. J. W. GREEN, JOSEPH C. JACKSON, W. B. WISTER, of Pennsylvania, and F. S. LAMBERT, of the Irish Wide-Awakes, delivered stirring addresses. Mr. JACKSON made a very thorough statement of the causes which led to the present condition of the country, and urged them to see to it that the United States Government was a fair reflection of the principles of the American people. It was a very enthusiastic meeting.

Mozart Hall General Committee.

The General Committee of the "National Democracy" (Mozart) met at Mozart Hall at 8 P. M. last evening, Judge SCHERMERHORN presiding. A long discussion took place with regard to the propriety of appointing a Committee to settle differences in various Wards concerning the appointment of Inspectors of Election. A Committee of five were finally appointed for that purpose, and were instructed to issue a call for the Primary meetings. The Committee then adjourned.

SHOCKING OCCURRENCE IN THE FIRST WARD.

A Woman Fatally Wounded by her Suitor, who Subsequently Attempted to Blow his Brains Out and came near being Lynched—Jealousy and Revenge.

A very great excitement was occasioned on the west side of the First Ward yesterday forenoon, by the attempt on the part of HENRY N. PIERREPONT, a shoemaker, living at No. 46 Greenwich-street, to murder a woman named HANNAH JONES, to whom for a few weeks past he has been under an engagement of marriage. In July last Mrs. JONES, who keeps a boarding-house and drinking-place at No. 22½ Morris-street, became a widow. PIERREPONT had been an intimate friend of her husband's, and after the decease of the latter he had endeavored to do all in his power for the bereaved wife. He assisted in settling up the affairs of deceased and by his management Mrs. JONES was enabled to retain possession of the business. In all her troubles the widow found in PIERREPONT a counselor in whom she could rely, and finally he seemed so indispensable to her that when he made an offer to marry her, it found on her part a ready acceptance. Such has been the condition of affairs for some weeks, during which time the ardent shoemaker has invested all his spare cash in presents for his affianced, and the course of their true love seemed to show an exception to the old adage. Late on Sunday night, however, PIERREPONT's short dream of happiness was disturbed. An acquaintance called upon him, and inquired if he would go and witness for himself the infidelity of his betrothed. He doubted the truth of his friend's words, but consented to go with him. Accordingly, they obtained admission by stealth to the rear yard of the premises occupied by Mrs. JONES, and raising the window-curtain, PIERREPONT saw the widow under circumstances which excited his jealousy and indignation. His first impulse was to avenge himself upon his rival, but his friend restrained him, and he returned home without having discovered himself to his deceiver. After nursing his jealous feelings all night, in a state bordering upon frenzy, he went to Mrs. JONES' house, and demanded an explanation of the conduct he had witnessed the previous evening. She replied that the person he had seen in her company was an employe of one of the Express Companies in Broadway, and being desirous that he should board with her, she had endeavored to secure his favor. The explanation did not satisfy PIERREPONT, who upbraided the woman, until finally she said that the engagement between them would be broken. She also offered to restore what presents he had given her, and to reimburse him for whatever else she had received from him. As she was in the act of leaving the room PIERREPONT caught her by the hand, and drawing a shoemaker's knife from his breast pocket, he thrust it into her right arm. The blow severed the large artery lengthwise, and caused a dangerous wound, from which the blood poured copiously. The injured woman escaped from the grasp of the desperate man, and ran screaming across the street into the liquor-store of JAMES FITZGERALD, No. 21 Morris-street, where she ran into a bed-room on the second floor, and attempted to close the door. FITZGERALD and the family were at dinner at the time, and Mrs. JONES, to reach the apartment where she had taken refuge, had to pass through the room in which they were eating. Mrs. FITZGERALD and another woman followed her up stairs but almost at the same moment PIERREPONT ran up also, and discharged one barrel of a horse-pistol in the direction of the closed door. The ball nearly grazed Mrs. FITZGERALD's face and entered the head of Mrs. JONES, a short distance in front and directly above the left ear. PIERREPONT immediately placed the pistol to his own head, and doubtless would have killed himself had not Mr. FITZGERALD seized the weapon and struggled to obtain possession of it. Meantime a crowd had been drawn together and some of the men made an attack upon PIERREPONT, who was knocked down and beaten in a shameful manner. In fact, he would probably have been lynched, in accordance with a cry to that effect, but for the timely arrival of Officer GEO. ROWLAND, of the First Ward, who rescued him from his assailants, and took him to the Police Sub-Station, which is near by, in Trinity-place. Sergt. WEMYSS having been informed of what had transpired, promptly repaired to the scene of the occurrence, and caused the wounded woman to be removed to the New-York Hospital. She was placed in the hands of Dr. WEIR, the House Surgeon, who, after probing her wound for several inches, was unable to find the ball, which has lodged in the brain. Her condition is pronounced to be beyond all hope. PIERREPONT at a late hour in the afternoon was taken before Justice KELLY at the Tombs, who committed him to await the result of the injuries he had caused. The prisoner is a native of Liverpool, England, aged 40, and he has lived in the First Ward about twelve years. He has always borne a good reputation, and his appearance would not warrant a belief that he could have perpetrated so terrible a crime. He expressed himself sorry that the attempt that he made on his life was a failure, but said he felt no remorse for what he had done to the woman, whose conduct, he thought, sufficiently justified him. Mrs. JONES, his victim, is an Irishwoman, about 25 years of age. At a late hour last evening she remained at the Hospital in the semi-conscious condition in which she was when admitted.

Amusements.

WINTER GARDEN.—Another attraction, and one of most fortunate consequences, inasmuch as it will assuredly attract large audiences every night it is played, was produced at this theatre last night. It is a burlesque written by the brothers BROUGH,—the death of one of whom we had but a short time since to chronicle, and was played for a long time in London, with marked success. Its title is "The Magic Joke, or Prince Doloroso." Of plot, there is only a thread, which, were it describable, need not be described, it being the essence of all burlesque that the plot should be indescribable. Assuredly it is so in this instance, although there is as much coherency in the piece as in one of the stories of the Arabian Nights.

And we are much reminded of one of those fascinating stories of our childhood, at the opening of the piece. There is the sea and the fisherman,—that unlucky fisherman who catches no fish, but hauls up a box, in which, of course, there is an imprisoned fairy. The fairy, as a due matter of gratitude, rewards her deliverer,—in this instance, with three gifts, a magic sword, a magic bottle, and a "magic joke." To whomsoever that joke is told, irrestrainable laughter cometh. It is contagious, moreover, and can infect multitudes.

Prince Doloroso is heir apparent, or for anything that appears to the contrary, actual sovereign of the Dolorous Isles. His time is passed in weeping. He uses a fresh handkerchief for the wiping of his tears every two minutes. His courtiers, in true Court style, appear to follow his example. But the fisherman, rewarded with the magic gifts aforesaid, suddenly appears, and whispers in his ear the "Magic Joke." The effect is instantaneous, and cachination is universal. But still something troubles the Prince. He is in want of a miracle of a wife,—a maiden, the most beautiful, the most virtuous, the most accomplished, the most amiable, the very pink and paragon of her sex in all the world. There is such a transcendent damsel, but she is in the hands of a powerful magician. However, by means of the magic sword and bottle, she is found and carried off by the Prince—then, through the indiscretion of the fisherman, is regained by the magician, transformed, like his other victims, into a marble statue—made flesh and blood again, by the interposition of the magic sword, and at the fall of the curtain, is united in bonds of matrimony with Mrs. BARNEY WILLIAMS, who personates the Prince. The piece is plentifully interspersed with songs, duetts and choruses. The puns are numerous, and generally good. Many of them were sparkling. Necessarily, a few were old friends, as always must occur in such pieces.

The acting is scarcely to be criticised in these burlesque plays, but, last night, it was all that could be desired for the nature of the several parts. Mrs. WILLIAMS was excellent. Since MARY TAYLOR, we have seen nothing like her. Mrs. CHANFRAU and Mrs. JOHN SEFTON deserved unqualified applause. The Fisherman, played by Mr. DAVIDGE, left nothing to be desired. The scenery was old, and sometimes inappropriate, but the "Statue scene," at the close of the piece, was very happy in its effect.

WALLACK'S THEATRE.—After the "Royalist" last night, a new London farce, entitled "A Race for a Widow," was played here for the first time. There is little of novelty in the plot, but, such as it is, it is ingeniously constructed, and productive of much merriment. A certain Mrs. Winnington (Mrs. SLOAN) is supposed to be a widow, with a jointure of three hundred pounds a year, and to obtain her hand, or rather her annuity, is the object of Mr. Popjoy, (Mr. SLOAN,) a lawyer's clerk, and Mr. Adolphus De Cremorne, (Mr. FLOYD,) a sprig of fashion, very "hard up" for the means of continuing existence under circumstances at all pleasant. Out of these positions a series of adventures are evolved, which are laughable enough, and keep the audience abundantly satisfied until the fall of the curtain.

OLD BOWERY.—Mr. F. S. CHANFRAU returned to the stage last night, at this theatre, after an absence of three years, in the part of Wool, in the drama of "The Hidden Hand." We have only space to say that the house was crowded, and that his reception was second only to that of Mr. FORREST at Niblo's last week. These two actors are evidently great favorites with a large portion of the theatre-going population.

CITY AND COUNTY AFFAIRS.

BOARD OF COUNCILMEN.

THE CORPORATION COUNSEL AND THE FOURTH-AVENUE WORK—A LARGE CONTRACT—THE FIRE COMMISSIONERS SNUBBED AGAIN—HEAVY REMISSION OF TAXES.

A communication was received by the Board of Councilmen last evening from the Counsel to the Corporation in answer to an inquiry as to the legality of pursuing the work on the Fourth-avenue mains without contract, but as it was entirely non-committal, and afforded no information as to the matter inquired of, it was ordered to be entered on the minutes without discussion. The communication states that all work exceeding $250 in amount must be done by contract, except in cases where the work is "necessary to complete or perfect a particular job," but entirely ignores the fact that the Common Council is authorized, by a three-fourths vote, to direct any work to be done by the day. And as an evidence that the Board was quite familiar with the power intrusted to them, they passed during the evening a report directing a drill-room over Jefferson Market to be fitted up at an expense of $750, the work to be done, without contract

The award of contract to Bryan O'Connor and Roger Sullivan, for regulating and grading Tenth-avenue, from Seventy-first to Eighty-sixth-street, at an expense of $65,000, was referred.

A report of the Fire Commissioners, expelling and suspending certain members of Hook and Ladder Company No. 8 and Engine Company No. 18, for rioting and fighting, was sent back by the Board of Aldermen for reconsideration. Messrs. PINCKNEY and SHAW opposed the concurrence with the other Board, as a matter of justice to the respectable and honorable members of the Department, but it was concurred in by a vote of 13 to 7.

A similar report from the same Board, expelling and suspending members of various companies for fighting and rioting, met the same fate.

A resolution to repair the pavement of Fifty-fourth-street forthwith was concurred in.

A report in favor of relieving the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum from taxes and assessments, amounting to over $7,000, was concurred in. Also in favor of increasing the salary of the second Assistant Auditor of the Finance Department $500. The sum of $750 was appropriated for fitting up the room over Jefferson Market for the Seventy-ninth Regiment, the same to be done without contract. A report in favor of paying Geo. W. Morton, late City Inspector, the sum of $715, for salary while acting as City Inspector and for a judgment recovered against him, was adopted.

The salaries of the clerks in the Corporation Attorney's office were increased, viz.: the first clerk to $2,000, and the second clerk to $1,500, as was the salary of a clerk in the office of the Chief Engineer from $1,000 to $1,500.

Several general orders of minor importance were disposed of, and the Board adjourned until Thursday, at 5 P. M.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

NO QUORUM.

The Board of Aldermen at 5 P. M. yesterday adjourned, for want of a quorum, to Thursday next.

THE HIGH BRIDGE.

THE MAYOR CONSENTS TO THE COMPLETION OF THE WORK.

The following is Mayor WOOD's reply to the letter of the Croton Aqueduct Board which we published yesterday:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 22, 1860.

To the Croton Aqueduct Board:

GENTS: I have been directed by his Honor the Mayor to say, that though your communication of this date is disrespectful in its tone, and false in its facts, he replies to it so far as to say that he withdraws any objection which in your opinion, he has heretofore made to the Croton Aqueduct Department proceeding with any public work under their charge, in any mode the Board deems desirable for the public interests, consistent with law. Respectfully, J. B. AULD, Clerk.

MAYOR'S OFFICE.

RENEWAL OF CART LICENSES.

The annual renewal of cart licenses at the Mayor's Office, commenced yesterday, and brought a goodly crowd of carmen. Owing to the absence of the first Marshal, Col. J. C. BURNHAM, detained at home by the sudden death of an elder brother, his duty devolved upon the Assistant Marshal, Mr. HINCHMAN, who discharged the duties promptly, and to the satisfaction of all. The Mayor's Office will be closed at 1 P. M., to-day, to enable the clerks to attend the funeral of Marshal BURNHAM's brother.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE.

MEETING OF THE CROTON BOARD AND COMPTROLLER POSTPONED.

The meeting arranged for yesterday, between the Croton Board and the Comptroller, to settle the question as to the payment of men employed by the day on the High Bridge work, and Fourth-avenue mains, was postponed in consequence of the decease of a niece of Mr. HAWS, whose funeral took place yesterday.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

FIFTH REGIMENT OFFICERS AT BEDLOE'S ISLAND.—Yesterday the following officers of the Fifth Regiment, and several invited guests, chartered a small steamer and visited Bedloe's Island, viz.: Col. SCHWARZWAELDER, Brigade Major Alford, Major Burger, Paymaster Fearing, Quartermaster Dalton, Chaplain Eddy, Capts. Hertman, Gerdes, Mander, and Hinslage; Lieuts. Schaefer, Bretman, Meyer and Luke; Orderly Sergeant Leitz, and Lieut. Wm. Sinclair, of the Third Artillery, U. S. A. The object of the visit was to inspect the barracks of the fort, where the Fifth, as it has already been fully announced, is "to encamp," (that is according to the order,) but in reality is) to perform thorough garrison duty, and practice gunnery) for a week, commencing to-morrow morning. Four barbette guns were found mounted on the south "terre plain." These were mounted last Monday by 20 men from Fort Hamilton, under the command of Lieut. SINCLAIR, and are to be used daily by detachments of the Fifth, until every man of the 500 is initiated into the artillery drill. The East and West Barracks, consisting of four large rooms, are to be used by the privates; the North Barrack is to be used by the line officers, and the Hospital by the Field and Staff; all are in excellent condition. There are two large kitchens and plenty of bath-rooms. The men will sleep in the old-fashioned double wooden bunks formerly used in the army. Gen. SANFORD will be invited to inspect the garrison next Tuesday or Wednesday. The expense of the week's duty will be for rations alone 70 cents per day to each man, and then the ammunition, locks and friction tubes, both of which are to be used, are also to be paid for by the Regiment. Maj. ROBERT ANDERSON, of the First Artillery, U. S. A., who is to instruct the Regiment, was not present yesterday. At about 4 o'clock the party returned highly pleased with the quarters. After the Regiment is garrisoned tickets will be issued to spectators, but none will be allowed in the garrison until the latter part of the week.

DESPERATE ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.—Between 11 and 12 o'clock yesterday forenoon, a citizen while walking in Jones' Wood observed a man on the ground bleeding from a frightful gash in his throat, and beside him lay a razor which indicated plainly how the injury had been committed. Assistance was called, and the sufferer was conveyed to the Nineteenth Ward Station-house, where he received surgical attention, but subsequently he was removed to Bellevue Hospital. It was found that he had attempted to sever the arteries of his arms as well as those of his throat, and it is thought that no chance of his recovery exists. When he was discovered his consciousness had not completely left him, but the wound in the throat was so deep that he could not articulate. The miserable man has not yet been positively identified, although it is believed that his name is WILLIAM CROSS. Judging from his appearance, inability to obtain employment and consequent destitution were the probable causes which induced him to commit self-destruction.

A BOSTONIAN DROWNED.—S. FREEMAN, a young man who recently came to this City from Boston, either fell or jumped into the water at Pier No. 13 North River, on Sunday evening, and before he was taken out he had become so exhausted that he did not long survive. The body was removed to the First Ward Station-house, where Corner SCHIRMER yesterday held an inquest upon it. It transpired that deceased, who had taken lodgings at No. 141 Cedar-street, was in poor health, and the physician who attended him believed him to be partially insane. A few minutes previous to the time that he was found in the water he had left the lodging-house without speaking to any one, but whether he attempted to commit self-destruction or got into the water by accident, could not be ascertained. A verdict of death by drowning was therefore rendered. In the pocket of deceased a wallet containing $120 was found.

GORED BY A COW.—About 10 o'clock yesterday morning, ADAM DOUGLAS, a boy 10 years of age, employed at a daguerrian gallery in Grand-street, was knocked down and gored by a cow at the corner of the Bowery and Spring-street. The animal had separated from a drove which was passing up the Bowery on the way to Bull's Head, and becoming frightened, dashed off at a furious rate of speed, exciting great consternation among pedestrians. She was finally shot by a Tenth Ward Policeman in the neighborhood of Essex Market before further damage was done. The boy DOUGLAS was severely cut about the head, and after having his wounds dressed at a drug store, he was sent to his home, No. 77 Goerck-street.

MEETING OF THE FIRE COMMISSIONERS.—The Fire Commissioners held a meeting last evening. Mr. HENRY FOLSOM presided. Several complaints of street-fighting against various companies were investigated, but no decision rendered. About 25 complaints against firemen of various companies, for not reporting the loss of their badges and returning the same when found, were made, and the parties summoned. The law respecting this matter says that any man committing such an offence shall be expelled from the Department forthwith. Several men were present and explained their cases, and had the complaints against them dismissed.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT.—Coroner SCHIRMER yesterday held an inquest at No. 110 Third-street, upon the body of GEORGE KARR, a boy 4 years of age, who was almost instantly killed, in consequence of having fallen out of a third story window. The child was standing upon a chair attempting to raise the sash, when he lost his balance and fell headlong to the yard.

SUICIDE OF A DERANGED MAN.—Mr. IGNATZ REGIESKY, a native of Poland, 37 years of age, died last evening from the effects of a dose of arsenic which he had intentionally swallowed. Deceased resided at No. 550 Fourth-street, and for some time past he has not been sane. He took the poison early in the morning, but the fact was not ascertained until it was too late for an antidote to be of service.

MORE CHILDREN FOR THE WEST.—Rev. W. C. VAN METER, Superintendent of the Fourth Ward Mission, and Mr. ALLEN, of the Refuge, leave this morning, with 40 to 50 children for Illinois and Iowa. This is the twenty-sixth company Mr. VAN METER has taken West.

THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS.—The Police Commissioners yesterday caused Sergeant TAFT, of the Ninth Precinct, and Sergeant DEVORSENEY, of the Eighth, to change places. S. S. DAVIS was appointed Doorman of the House of Detention, in place of PROCTOR.

National Emigrant Benevolent Association.

INTERESTING PROCEEDINGS—THE CASE OF WARD AND GILBERT.

This Association met yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the German Society, E. JELLINGHAUS in the Chair. The following Societies were represented: German, St. George's, St. Andrew's, F. S. of St. Patrick, St. David's, French-Swiss, Portuguese, Hebrew, Scandinavian and Hebrew Benevolent. After the reading of the minutes, Mr. ROBT. JOHNSON, Counsel to the Board, read his report; in which he stated that since the organization of this Board ticket-swindling had been suppressed, and instead of twenty complaints a day, which they were accustomed to receive, that since May last only seven complaints have been made.

The conviction of Frank Fowler, which was the second ever had for ticket-swindling, struck terror into the runners, and the act of 1860, to prevent frauds in the sale of passengers' tickets has, since the 1st of May, almost annihilated their business. Since then we have not had more than two complaints a month. The first complaint was made by a clergyman going to California, who was defrauded out of $600 by one Patrick Duffy. Duffy was arrested immediately, paid back the money, and the clergyman would not remain to prosecute. Upon the 11th of May another case occurred, where a man was defrauded in the office of Isaiah Selover; here, too, the accused was arrested and committed for trial, but the complainant, as I am informed, accepted what he had lost, and clandestinely left. On another charge Selover was himself arrested, but the witness having particular business in France to attend to, he also accepted the amount he was defrauded out of and left for Europe. Stephen Gordon, the proprietor of a booking office, is now in jail awaiting a trial, and the witness against him in the House of Detention. He has been in prison several months. George Ward and Gilbert, about two months since, were also arrested for violating the ticket act, but were acquitted a few days ago by the Jury, under the direction of the City Judge, Hon. A. D. Russell. Henry Smithurst, arrested for selling a ticket without license, was last week convicted, in the General Sessions, for larceny, and Nicholas Miller last month was sent to prison for three months for soliciting passengers without license.

He further stated that the late ruling of Judge Russel, in the case of Ward and Gilbert, was unprecedented, and that he hoped the Board would take some action in regard to it. The ship owners in some instances doing what he feared they were not aware of, for within a few weeks some of the most notorious ticket swindlers have received authority from various ship owners to act as their passenger agents. In one instance, a runner against whom there has been various complaints for false pretences, and who had fled from the State to avoid a prosecution, and who remained in New-Jersey until the witness had left, was appointed by a most respectable merchant the day after he came back. I have no doubt these appointments have been inadvertently made, and that any complaints made by your Board against any of the agents to their principals, will receive full consideration. I would, therefore, suggest that a Committee call upon the prominent ship owners in this City, to request their coöperation.

There is another cause of complaint. Agents often misrepresent the day when a ship is to sail in order to secure passengers. They will fix any day for departure they please upon the ticket, and the passenger is often obliged to remain a week or two after a time fixed for his departure. Those tickets by the ship Escort were sold to a number of persons, under the pretence that she would leave on the 10th of September, when in fact she did not sail until the 18th. The ship R. S. Ely was advertised to sail on Sept. 6, but did not sail until the 13th. The Emerald Isle advertised to sail on the 8th, left on the 18th. The act of 1860 declares, that in case a passenger is detained more than two days after the day of sailing, by reason of the ship's remaining in port, that he shall be entitled to board and lodgings aboard such ship, and fifty cents a day until the day of departure, and that if the same is not given, he can recover back his passage-money from the ship-owners, together with $50 for costs and expenses. If your Board authorizes me, I will in case of any more complaints, sue for violation of this section.

Before concluding, I cannot help stating the obligations we are under for the impartial and prompt attention which Justices Welsh and Kelly have given to all cases that have come before them; and also to Capt. Hart, of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, whose exertions to enforce the act of 1860, by the prompt arrest of every offender against its provisions, no matter what might be his political connections. I really think that the suppression of bogus offices in this City is in a great measure owing to his exertions, for without the active coöperation of the Police the law would be a dead letter.

A Committee to wait upon the District Attorney to ascertain his views in regard to the ruling of Judge Russell, was appointed to report at the next meeting. A Committee was also appointed to wait upon the ship-owners to request their coöperation with the Association.

The meeting then adjourned to the 9th of October, at 9 A. M.

Thirty-second Annual Exhibition of the American Institute Fair.

The annual Fair of the American Institute was opened last evening at the Palace Gardens in Fourteenth-street, and under circumstances which promise an auspicious termination. The exhibition of the present season is confined exclusively to floricultural and pomological specimens, with such agricultural implements as might be presented. Of the latter class the show is at present exceedingly meagre, but will doubtless improve with the opportunity afforded by the promise of a two weeks' exhibition. The fruits were not fully arranged, and it would be unjust to criticise them further than to say, that the promise held out by the first days' show will amply repay a visit to the grounds.

Of the floral exhibition too much can scarcely be said, as there has probably never been so fine a show of native and exotic plants gathered within one building in this State. The display of flowers of every kind, and apparently from every clime, exhaling the most delicious perfume, and attracting universal attention by their variety and beauty, was worthy of all the praise which fell from every lip, and echoing the language of the advertisement, citizens and strangers are advised to visit the exhibition before the flowers commence to fade. The magnificent Victoria Regia will be placed to-day in the tank prepared for its reception, and this alone will repay the cost of a visit.

The opening address was delivered by HENRY MEIGS, Esq., for many years an active and honored member of the Institute.

The Fair will continue for two weeks, during which time additions will be made daily to all the departments, and every effort will be made by the managers to merit the patronage which they solicit.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

DEDICATION OF A WIGWAM.—The Seventh Ward Republican Club having completed their wigwam, at the corner of Classon and DeKalb avenues, it was appropriately dedicated last evening, by holding a public meeting therein. The building is a regular wigwam in shape, about fifty feet in diameter, and capable of holding about two thousand persons. The meeting was organized by electing MITCHELL SANDFORD, Esq., Chairman, who opened the proceedings with an address suitable to the occasion. The Rocky Mountain Club held their regular weekly public meeting at the wigwam on Fulton-street, opposite the City Hall, which was well filled. Addresses were made by CYRUS NORTHRUP, Esq., of Connecticut, Mr. VELE, of New-York, and others. A public meeting was also held last evening in the South Brooklyn Wigwam on Court-street, where HENRY HILL, Esq., made a speech. The meeting was largely attended. The Republicans of the Eleventh Ward met last evening at Granada Hall, and organized a Wide Awake Club, and elected FRANCIS B. KIRBY as Commander. Over one hundred persons signed the roll last evening, and the Club, armed and equipped in the usual fashion, joined the meeting in the Seventh Ward.

COMMON COUNCIL.—The Board of Aldermen held a regular meeting last evening. Alderman FURY offered a resolution to divide the Fifth Ward into four Election Districts. The resolution was adopted. Alderman VAN BRUNT moved to divide the Eighth Ward, so as to make two Election Districts, and that all that part lying north of Middle-street be the Second District, and the balance of the Ward the First Election District. The motion was adopted. Alderman DAYTON moved that the Eleventh Ward be divided into five Election Districts. The motion was adopted, and the Board adjourned for one week.

FIFTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT.—The Breckinridge Party, in that portion of Brooklyn belonging to the Fifth Congressional District, have placed JOHN HANFORD in nomination for Congress.

The Supervisors and the Pilot Commissioners.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your report of a recent meeting of the Board of Supervisors, I find the following:

"Mr. PURDY then called up the report of the Committee on the subject of paying $250 for the removal of a sunken vessel from Governor's Island, which had been ordered by the Pilot Commissioners, and he read an advertisement from the same body, (published only in one paper,) inviting proposals for cutting off Pier No. 51 North River so as to conform to the exterior line of the City as established by law. Mr. PURDY contended that although these bills had been made legal County charges, and the Counsel to the Corporation had so certified, yet without some special provision in the tax levy they could not be paid. The Board might be called on for a million of dollars during the year for work ordered by these Commissioners, and the Supervisors would be condemned by their constituents for such a large deficit in their account."

A few words in answer to the above. Before any action was taken by the Pilot Commissioners to remove the wrecks, (although the law requires them to do so,) the subscriber asked some of the Supervisors—among others, Mr. PURDY—if the bills would be passed by the Board of Supervisors—the whole amount for four wrecks not to exceed $1,500—and an affirmative answer was given by all.

The proposals to remove the end of Pier No. 51, North River, were advertised in three newspapers, (four were ordered,) although the law does not require the Commissioners to advertise for proposals.

Now, as to the danger of the Pilot Commissioners calling for a million of dollars—the answer is, that the Commissioners cannot call for one dollar, unless the law of the State is violated by the City or County, in which case it should pay.

Now, as to the money to pay for removing wrecks, &c., for the future,—the Pilot Commissioners have asked the Comptroller to insert five thousand dollars in the tax levy next year for these purposes, which they think will be ample; at any rate, they will not call for more. GEO. W. BLUNT.

Judge Russell and the Ticket Swindlers.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of the 22d inst. I read an article entitled "Ticket Swindlers and Judge Russell." I know all the facts in that case, and had you known them as I do, you would not have permitted the article to appear. It does great injustice to Judge RUSSELL. If anyone had occasion to find fault with Judge RUSSELL in the case of SMITHURST, it was the prisoner and his counsel. SMITHURST was tried on an indictment found over eighteen months ago, at a time when his witnesses could not be obtained and under the most unfavorable circumstances. The counsel for the prisoner objected to the introduction of certain written evidence, and sustained his objection by the decisions of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals; and yet Judge RUSSELL admitted the evidence. The charge of the Judge left every question of fact to the jury, and charged the law against the prisoner. The jury convicted; and the prisoner's counsel prepared a bill of exceptions, and served the same on the District-Attorney. And pending the settlement, of course the Judge did not sentence. Nine out of ten who heard the trial until the Judge's charge, thought the jury would acquit, but after the charge the opinion was changed.

As to the charge against WARD and GILBERT, there was nothing in the case to justify an indictment. WARD was duly licensed as a runner—was duly appointed as an agent to solicit passengers, and GILBERT was a clerk in his office. The ticket sold was a genuine ticket, and the price charged, the regular price.

As to the statement that during the trial the prisoner's counsel was "often in private consultation with the Judge on the bench," it is simply a direct misstatement. During the trial the District-Attorney asked the Court to delay the proceedings, to enable him to get a witness that he deemed necessary, which request was granted, and an hour's indulgence accorded to the prosecution for that purpose. During this recess, the counsel for the prisoner and the Judge were in consultation in the clerk's office upon private business, and the subject of the trial was not alluded to by either. I have given you a full and true statement of the facts, which show that your article is without the slightest foundation. Will you do the party censured the justice to publish this statement? *

Military and Naval Intelligence.

We have several days later news from the Western Army Departments, by the California mail. LANDER's wagon-road party had completed its operations and returned to Marysville and Sacramento, where the stock of the expedition would be disposed of. Col. LANDER had a very satisfactory interview with the Indian war chief WINNEMUCCA, who is described as being "thirty years of age, six feet high, and as straight as an arrow." The chief promised that his yellow-skinned friends would be quiet, and not annoy travelers. Lieut. WHITE, of the Third Artillery, recently attached to MULLAN's expedition, arrived at Fort Randall, Nebraska, on the 6th of September, from Fort Benton. MULLAN's road is only partially finished, and will require another season's labor. The distance between Walla Walla, where it commences, and the head of steamer navigation on the Missouri, is set down at 618 miles.

Col. RANES, Maj. HALLER, Lieuts. DRYER, MCCALL, SCOTT, RANDELL, HARDCASTLE, in charge of Companies E and T, of the Fourth Infantry, reached San Francisco on the 28th of August, in the steamer Cortez, from a military post outside the California district.

News from Fort Kearney, N. T., announces the departure from that post of Company F, Second Infantry, and Company A, Second Dragoons, for the Pawnee Reserve, as directed in an order published some time since. Recruits from the East had arrived; and additional troops, under Capt. TULLY, would leave on the 8th of September, to reinforce still further the Pawnee Fork. Fort Kearney is at present garrisoned by portions of Company E, Second Infantry, and Company A, Second Dragoons. The troops at all the posts were in good health. An Army Court-martial is ordered at Fort Moultrie, S. C.

The Ariel has brought us an important item of naval intelligence, which we publish with reserve, as it conflicts with other advices. The American Minister at Callao, our correspondent on board the Lancaster states, had called upon the Commander-in-Chief of the United States naval forces in the Pacific to proceed at once to the Peruvian waters with his available vessels. Should this information be reliable, the following is an exhibit of our Pacific squadron, which would be required to assemble at Callao:

Vessels.	Officers and men.	Guns.	Tonnage.
Flagship Lancaster	300	22	2,360
Steamer Wyoming	170	6	997
Sloop-of-war Cyane	217	20	792
Sloop-of-war St. Marys	218	22	958
Sloop-of-war Levant	218	20	792
Steam Gunboat Narragansett	150	5	809
Total	1,273	95	6,708

We leave out the Saranac, as she is detached from the fleet.

By to-morrow or Wednesday, the United States steam gun-boat Pawnee will be outward bound from Philadelphia, on her first cruise. She takes Mr. MCLANE to Vera Cruz, and will then join our fleet in the Gulf of Mexico. The Pawnee is 280 feet long, 47 feet wide, and carries over 130 officers and men. The four formidable 11-inch guns originally designed for her have been removed, and replaced by eight of 8-inch calibre. We append a list of her officers: Commander HARTSTEIN (who went home in the British bark found in the North Sea by an American whaler;) Lieuts. Samuel Marcy, R. B. Lowry, R. T. Chaplin; Paymaster, C. W. Abbott; Surgeon, T. W. Grinnell; Master, Nathaniel Greene; Boatswain, James Miller; Gunner, W. Burnise; Lieut. of Marines, E. M. D. Reynolds; Chief Engineer, Geo. Gideon: Assistant Engineers, T. M. Adams, Phillip Irish, John Johnson, David Hardy, and John Rielly. The new Commander-in-Chief of the Home Squadron, Commodore PRENDERGAST, will also go out in the Pawnee.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Sept. 24.

The case of Purser ABBOTT, of the sloop-of-war Pawnee, was discharged by the Court of Quarter Sessions to-day.

TOO LATE FOR CLASSIFICATION.

FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.

The Thirty-second Annual Exhibition is now open, and will continue for two weeks. The display of fruits and flowers excels any exhibition heretofore given in this country.
